WILLINGBORO NEW JERSEY

As we look back over the past four years, we remember how it was before this school became a reality.

Overcrowded conditions were unbearable. Awakening at six a.m. to go to school; leaving at one p.m. while another group arrived not to be released until five p.m. Sometimes had to be done. In September of 1975 an earth-shattering event occurred, launching a new era, two senior high schools in Willingboro. Downwind from the old alma mater, the building had the greatest innovations including, rubber floors in the gymnasium, hallways and classrooms with carpeting, and an air conditioner.

The air conditioner leaked water, the carpet soiled every time it rained. "The school is sinking!" Happy 200th birthday, America. Common complaints rang throughout the building and the turbulence was only beginning.

Strike! The word crackled through the air like a firecracker on the fourth of July. In the dingy gray of November, we were bound to crash land in the midst of threats, bargaining and finally settlement. We were drifting off course, but we were headed back in the right direction considering we were just "Gettin off the Ground."

Getting Off the Ground

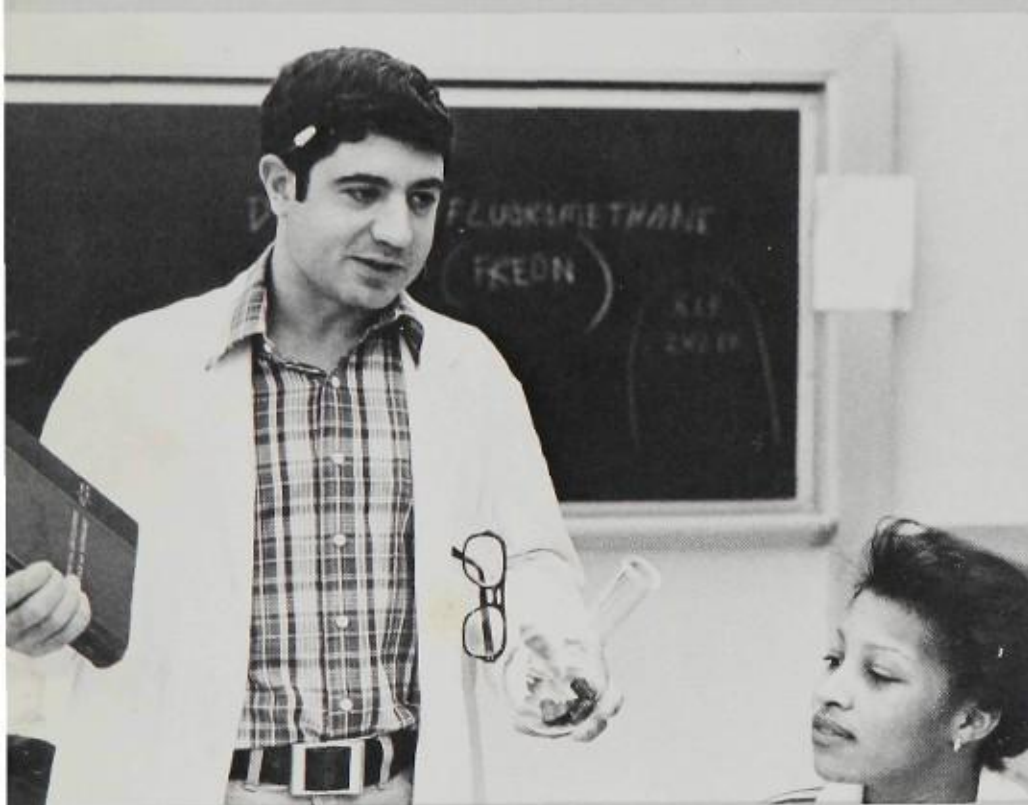

WHAT'S UP?

The new school year brought new faces; not only those of sophomores, but those of the new teachers and administrators. As a result of the district reorganization and the closing of Levitt Junior High, many familiar old faces did not reappear last September. In their places, new ones came; transfers from other schools and some totally new to Willingboro Schools.

September not only brought new teachers but new rules. By this time we were up to our ears in rules and we were pressed for time with four minutes between classes and twelve days absent a year before time finally caught up with us.

There was an upheaval in the style of dress from the casual look of years past to the sophisticated and "classical" look of today. At one time graduation was a mockery — blue jeans and sneakers under the prestigious cap and gown. Commencement evening was a time to remember with students donning shoes, suits, and skirts. Things were definitely looking up for us.

College: "The American Dream", was so close and yet so far. We all desired to be accepted to the college of our choice. Yesterday's dreams and today's reality. The goal was ours to reach; and many of us achieved this with flying colors! For those of us who chose not to continue on to college, but to find a career in another road to success, they too have goals to set. Whether it be craftsman or merchant, all have risen to new heights.

Aspiring hair dresser Leticia Harris receives instruction from Mr. Maddon, the cosmetology teacher.

Entertaining at the Interact Club Halloween Big Brothers-Big Sisters Party with his grotesque appearance, John Carrasquillo stalks his prey.

Showing the style that won him first place in the Homecoming hustle contest, Alvin Little dances with Kelly Cummings.

Beth Jemison, Annette Ramsey, Cheryl Richardson, Jan Weinstein, Glenellyn Murray, Maureen McBride, Lisa Sigall and Lori Luker warm up inside before marching on the field to support the Chimera football team.

Brilliant minds, star athletes, beauty queens; all were a part of the intricate network that made three years of reading, writing, and arithmetic an experience that will last a lifetime. Moreover, the people behind the scenes, those not in the limelight, those never receiving an award, the unknown athlete, those with beauty far deeper than skin; all were a part of the making of this school.

In our four years of existence, we've had winners and losers, but for all those who tried until the very end, it was clear to see that we Chimeras had nowhere to go but up!

• • • • • THE SKY'S THE LIMIT

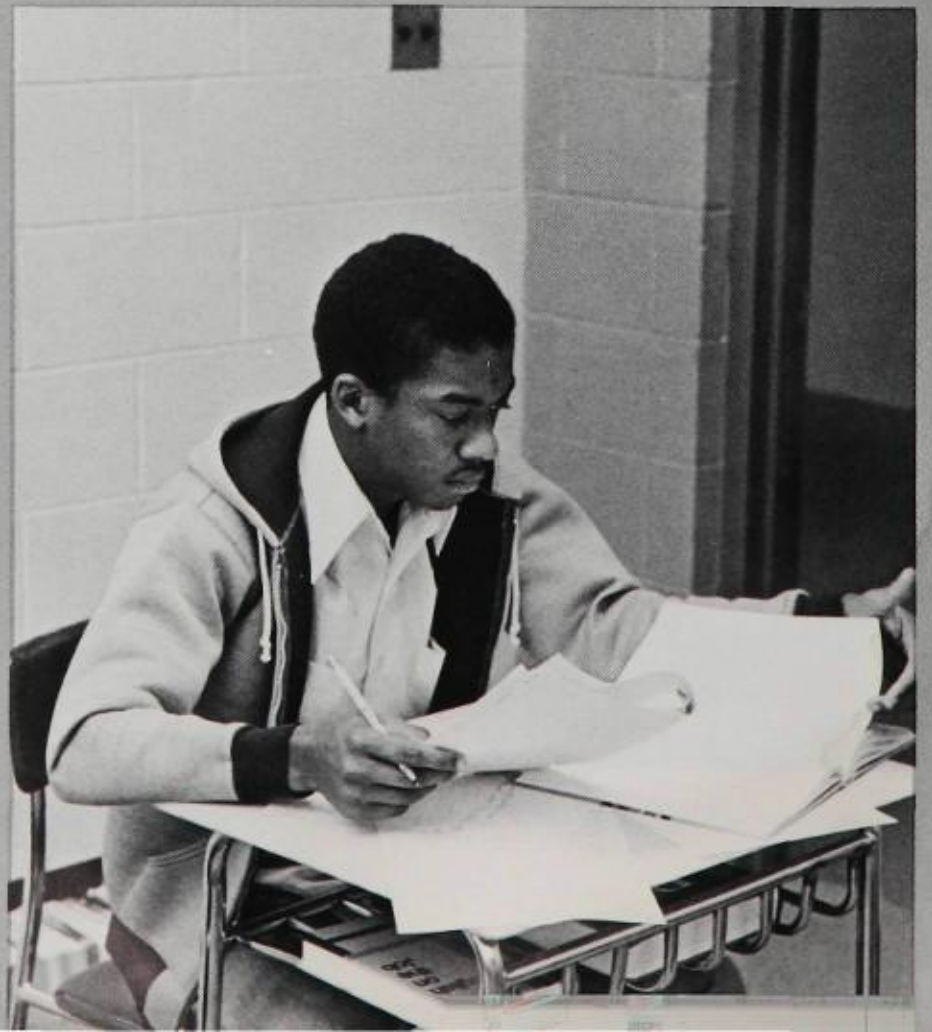

At the Big Brother-Big Sister Halloween Party, Larry Cashman entertains two young guests with his clown act.

We had, in our ranks, some of the most talented people, whose potential was unlimited and whose opportunities were infinite. As we began the year, all of us anticipated graduation and what was in store afterward. A common phrase was, "I can't wait 'til I get out!", usually followed by, "Wadd'rya' gonna do when you get out?". The answer to that question was what made us all, each and everyone of us, unique.

Most of us planned for getting a job, acceptance into a college or training program. Many signed up for the armed forces even before school let out. Some planned for marriage and raising families, while a few intended to "bam around" awhile until they decided what they wanted to do and to be.

What we had in common, however many differences there were among us, was the realization that the someday we had long anticipated as children was near. The "What are you going to be when you grow up" time had finally arrived. And, as our dreams started to look more like reality, in our hearts we knew that our futures depended on ourselves alone, and only the sky was the limit.

STUDENT LIFE

LIVE IT UP

The times most remembered in high school were the times spent out of class. Extracurricular activities provided time for friends to get together to discuss who said what to whom, who did what over the weekend, where, and what was yet to come.

We recall all of the sales, dances, shows, club meetings, and Homecoming; events participated in and enjoyed by all.

All of these and much, much more were part of the experience of student life and all prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that Willingboro High students know how to "Live it Up."

The Homecoming crowd cheered at the antics of dozens of Chimeras. Susan Kellner, Marcia Molina and Ellen McGrath typify the zany costumes and colorful floats designed for this annual event.

Wanda Newton seems determined not to let Debbie Sullivan receive the ball from a fellow underclassman.

Making a face showing her deep concentration, Mary Bilton shows her kicking ability.

Cutting out decorations seems to be Eric Jackel's specialty as he helps prepare the Senior's hall for Spirit Week.

By putting her vast artistic talent to work for the Junior Class, Sue Evans enabled the Juniors to win first prize.

Debbie Faktorow looks on as Paula Wetzel demonstrates her artistic ability for the hall decorations.

Union in Action

Junior Michelle Rogers shouts instructions to her teammates on the field, as Dina Scholes, Elaine McKeon, and Cathy Griggs, watch the game closely.

Class unity played a big role in Homecoming activities. The quality of the work done by the classes far exceeded the quality of preceeding years. Showing strong class harmony and teamwork were the Seniors. The Class of '79 played well together as they destroyed the underclass in powder-puff football. The Juniors were not to be suppressed, they showed their talent with fine art work and decorating ability — winning hall decoration competition. The Sophomores, although not winning any awards, won the respect of upperclassmen with their spirited work in the hall decorations. The events taught an important lesson to all participants, that by pulling together, unbelievable goals were attainable.

BUILDING SPIRIT

Bringing fans to their feet cheering, was Sonoma Greer, Captain of the Cheerleading Squad.

Acting merrily as they marched with the Senior Class float were Paula Wetzel, Perry Gottlieb, and Larry Siegel.

It was Homecoming Night, at half-time. The empty track suddenly exploded with action. Clowns, Pirates, Kings, Robbers and other colorful characters enthusiastically marched with their floats. The odd figures and floats exhibited the many weeks of hard work that the classes and clubs put into their designs. The endless weeks of hard work paid off, for some of the competitors. The Senior class and the "Z" club won first prize in their categories. All contenders showed great talent and ingenuity, proving Chimera spirit.

Dina Scholes fixed Caroline Visaggi's hair like her own, in an act of craziness the night of the bonfire.

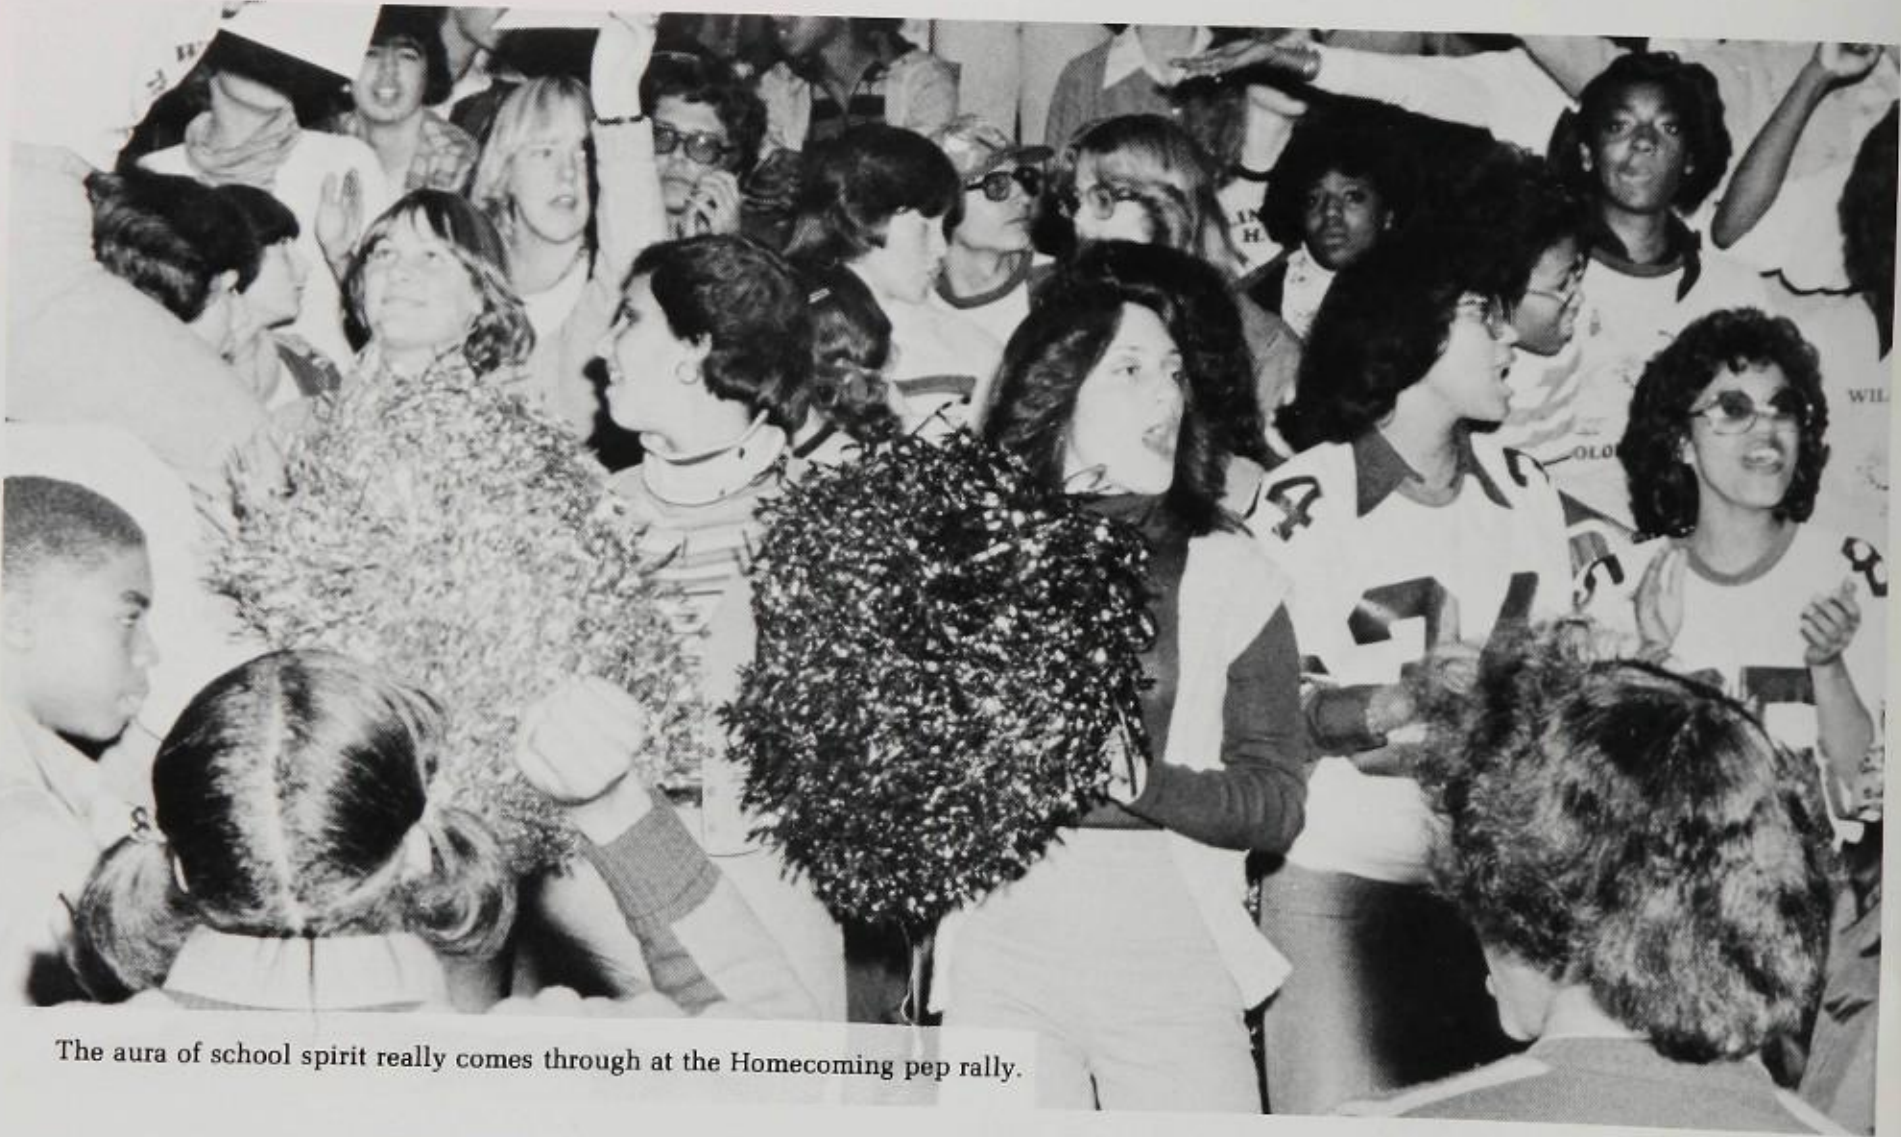

As the fire roared to an inferno, so did the spirit of the participants in the bonfire. Our cheerleaders, so full of spirit, could not help but to pass it on to the crowd. Seniors, Juniors and Sophomores jumped at the chance to show the strength of their voices. "79's", "80's" and "81's" echoed across the field surrounding the fire. Soon one could not tell which was more heated, the fire or the fans. When the flames were finally extinguished, the other fire, the fire of our spirit, burned on into the night, and will burn for years to come.

With a mighty roar, Michal Weiss led the crowd in a cheer.

Cheerleaders, like Michelle Rogers, made students come alive at the Bonfire.

STRIKE-UP THE BAND

The aura of school spirit really comes through at the Homecoming pep rally.

At the Homecoming pep rally Patty Stuebing, Jo Ann Ezze, and Marianne Kellner attempt to direct the band in a spirited fashion.

Music and enthusiasm played a big part in Homecoming activities, the combination motivated students to cheer and dance. At the pep rally preceding the game, students screamed, jumped, and cheered to the best of our Chimera band's music. Even at the Football game, which was dropped 21-0 students cheered their team on. At the homecoming dance, the spirit was certainly not dead. Chimera students hustled, freaked, and rocked the night away. In keeping with a Chimera tradition, the Homecoming queen, Denise Olphin was crowned at midnight; in addition this year a Homecoming king, John Wilson was named. The dance also featured a hustle contest in which dancers were given a chance to show off their skills. Alvin Little and Daphny Warren destroyed competitors with great moves. The dance and pep rally put Chimera spirit to the test. Our spirit passed with flying colors.

Homecoming King and Queen, John Wilson and Denise Olphin congratulate each other for their honors at the dance.

Football season was an exciting part of the school year for almost everyone. Coaches devoted their time to getting the best they could out of their players. Fans enjoyed watching their team in action on the field, while the cheerleaders backed them all the way. And the seniors made a profit off of the games by running the concession stands. But let's not forget the entertainment of the game — a group of approximately 100 talented members — the W.H.S. Marching Chimeras!

Half-time was for the fans. They relaxed while witnessing the results of plenty of hard work and practicing on the part of the students. Before the 78-79 school year had even begun, the marching Chimeras were in the parking lot learning new techniques and steps. It takes more than the fans might think to put together a show like the one seen for the first time last September.

These Marching Chimeras had put on an exciting show this year, with a lot of the credit going to Mr. Bernie Marini. As well as the designer of a great performance, Mr. Marini became a real friend to every one involved. He had spent these past two seasons making many sacrifices, and W.H.S. wishes to express it's appreciation to an exceptional man. The music was Mr. Nicholas Forte's department. He wrote original compositions for the band to play, with Mr. Rich Schlenker by his side as percussion instructor and co-director. The dynamic voice heard from above the stands announcing the performance, was that of Mr. Rich Giresi, a business teacher at the school. It took the combined efforts of all of these people to create a short fifteen minute show! Congratulations to each and everyone of them for another successful season.

WE KEEP UP THE SPIRIT

The Willingboro High School support units were the highlight of the football halftime show. These squads performed at every football game for the spectator's entertainment. The support units were not on the field doing simple routines. Each squad had its own perfected routine to add excitement to every performance. The Front Silks had "head chops", the Colorguard had gun exchange, Pom-Poms had their hats and canes, Flag Twirlers had the "Statue of Liberty", and the Majorettes had their flaming batons. All of these tasks took time to learn and accomplish. The girls started working on their show in August, and kept working right through football season. All of their hard work payed off at the end of each halftime show. The cheers and applause from grateful fans made all of the work worthwhile.

SUCCESS THROUGH DIVERSITY

The Willingboro High Key Club brought honors and recognition to the High School in many areas. The club provided services on the community level with its service project aimed at township improvement. At the county level, the club provided services to the Burlington County School for Handicapped students. The club entertained the students in the school with a Christmas party. The Club, when competing with other clubs in the state, won several honors at the State level. Internationally, a Club member, Ray Warburton, was elected to an International Trustee seat. The Club, even with its great diversity, still provided the High School with their services. The club was always on call for school activities.

The Z Club's attention focused mainly on the School and County. The Z Clubs' favorite pastime seemed to be collecting money. Club members sold anything and everything from candles to hoagies. The benefactors of these money drives were not the girls but lucky charities, that they chose to sponsor. The club helped handicapped county students by throwing parties in collaboration with the Key Club. The club members may not even realize it, but without them hundreds of people would be less happy.

Through the spirited service of members of the National Honor Society and the Interact Club, two Willingboro High School organizations, many people, both young and old, were made much happier. Honor Society members helped members of the older generation by visiting the residents of the Mount Holly Nursing Home. Each week, members took trips to the home, their enthusiasm was easily spread. Honor Society members helped their fellow students by tutoring them in various subject areas. Members of the Interact Club did much in helping the younger generation. In addition to their many other activities, club members entertained under-privileged youngsters with two holiday parties. The clubs showed that in Willingboro High School, enthusiasm was contagious.

International Communicators

Early in the 1978 school-year, the Willingboro School Board decided to drop several school clubs. Among the clubs dropped were the foreign language clubs. The Club members would not accept this decision; they went to Board meetings, signed petitions, and fought. The clubs managed to be reinstated. Once the clubs got going, it seemed as if there was no end to their many varied activities. Clubs expanded the cultural awareness of the people of Willingboro by participating in an International Festival. Club members prepared and served foreign foods and put on demonstrations of various ethnic activities. Spanish Club members traveled to Pennsylvania on a culture related field trip. The Latin Club hosted other clubs from New Jersey in a "Certamen Spevetz". The club members proved that the clubs were not "deadwood" in an extracurricular program. The clubs were important in that they provided members with a much broader knowledge of the world around them.

WORKING FOR US

Member-at-large, Alberto Rosende concentrates on the action at a meeting.

Challenges to be met . . . Traditions to be set — so reads our school's motto. Members of Student Government took the motto literally. This year many new events were sponsored by the Student Government. During Homecoming, crazy contests became popular, and the tradition of crowning a homecoming king was set. The organization took on many challenges; their biggest was the collection of blood for the American Red Cross. Chimera students volunteered blood to help others. The blood drive challenge was not only met, it was surpassed. Several pints over our goal were collected. All challenges the Student Government encountered, no matter how impossible, were met. In addition, many new traditions were set. This year, the Student Government set traditions; hopefully in future years they will be followed.

In Search Of Their Roots.

In 1979, Willingboro High was deluged by students wanting to study their heritage. For some students, religion played a major role in extracurricular studies. Members of the Gospel Choir were always found entertaining with their deeply moving and sincere form of music. The Bible Club enabled students to learn a little more about religion in their after school hours. Members of the Afro-American Club, in addition to finding themselves, turned to help others. By sponsoring dances and shows, the clubs raised money for various local charities. The clubs all helped students become more aware of their pasts. By understanding their backgrounds, the students, in turn, help society work towards a more promising future.

About every 2 months Chimera students began to feel itchy, they were waiting for something. Some did not realize it, others did; it was time for a new edition of the Chimera Chronicle! Those few sheets of paper held all the important information there was to know about the school. From sports to administrative proceedings, all was found within the paper. There are few people who can appreciate the work that was done on the paper. Reporting, writing, photography, proofing, typing, . . . it was all in a day's work for the staff of the paper. Yet with all of the pressure the students felt, they still managed to produce an interesting, informative, and quality paper.

"If I only had a brain," sang the scarecrow to Dorothy in the cornfields of OZ, lamenting his limited cranial capacity. Willingboro High may have had its share of scarecrows, but it had a few groups of intellectual Trojans as well. The logical minds that littered the A.P. and C.P. courses, not to mention a few clubs, made the school proud.

DECA Club members traveled to far off regions of the State for competition. Once there, students competed in strenuous mental exercise, pitting their minds against others. When the dust settled, W.H.S. DECA Club members had collected an unbelievable array of trophies and awards. The Chemistry Club's genius Spartanse rattled off formulas and experiments that would have impressed Avogadro. And, of course, the protein intellects that made up the Chess Club battled furiously, pitting brain against brain in tense, unyielding conflicts.

Maybe there weren't cheers for the mental athlete, but his competitiveness equaled that of any sports player.

Wood and string combine for beautiful music when the Orchestra plays.

This year any and all kinds of music could be found within the confines of the 'Boro music department. From classical to Rock, all of the music was played with quality and skill. While participating in the Winter Concert, Concert Band and Orchestra members entertained the audience with their well played pieces. None of us will ever forget the Jazz Band and Rock Ensemble Concerts which followed in the Spring of 1979. Band members were always found to be versatile, at one minute playing music for the Gong Show, at the next playing for the school musical, "Sugar". The quality of their music was unsurpassed, throughout the County. Willingboro High was known for its excellent musical talent.

With one eye on Mr. Schlenker, and the other on his music, Alvin Little fiddles a tune.

On with the show This is it!

There was almost no Drama Club this year; at the beginning of the term, the thespians found themselves without an advisor. A long and laborious search followed. Teachers were accosted in the halls, in the classrooms, and even in the lounge, by a squadron of Drama Club representatives. Still, there were no volunteers. Finally, fortune smiled upon them.

Asher Cottrell offered to perform as producer, while his wife, Claudia, fulfilled the role of director. A despondent and dispersed group swiftly reformed, and after some understandable confusion, picked "Sugar", a rollicking stage version of the film "Some Like it Hot", for the year's musical. It was dominated by the same talented group that started in "Guys and Dolls" and was responsible for the stupendous "Gypsy." Along with two upcoming classes of new talent, they made "Sugar" a delightful show.

There was almost no Drama Club this year. But even though they had a sour beginning, "Sugar" was just enough to give the year a sweet end.

TREND SETTERS

Early in the school year, Faculty members and visiting adults noticed a definite change in the Student Body. No longer were students satisfied to look like their peers. Individuality in a Fashion sense began to become more common. As a whole, students began dressing less sloppily. The change from sloppy to sophisticated was a welcome one.

For some; "GQery" was the word, and conservative was the style. Pleated and Peg-legged pants, narrow ties, and the like were modeled day in and day out.

Pierre Cardin, Yves Saint Laurent, Calvin Klein, and others were discussed daily in study halls, classrooms, and during lunch. Vogue, Gentleman's Quarterly, and Bazaar were carried, toted and torn month by month as we examined, priced, and bought items.

The end of the decade was definitely a "back to basics" time as the look of wools, cottons, and more comfortable patterns came into being. Each student developed his own style of fashion. Group identity and conformity which was common early in the decade was now gone. Most will agree that the change was for the better.

Mindy Hellman is fashionable from her hair to her toes.

Kevin Smith and Bob Egan hold a fashion forum in the Library.

Robin Mason puts on the finishing touches before starting her day.

One result of the new trend was the reluctance to change for Gym; Rosemary Ramos and Anette Ramsey opted to wear their sweaters to class.

There When We Need Them

Clubs play a very important part in the School's curriculum. The members of these organizations are not the only ones that make the club function, the club advisors are hard workers too.

Club advisors do not just sit around, observe meetings, and collect money. The club advisors play a very active role in their organizations. Club advisors do not merely sit around and tell their clubs what to do; they let the members decide what they want done, and then back up their decisions. Club advisors' work goes on well after school as meetings and activities are held. Many Club advisors spend their free time taking care of business transactions such as candy orders, time for bake sales, places for dances, etc. The club members are not the only ones who have a concern about the welfare of the club; this concern is what occupies the mind of every good advisor. Club advisors were always there, above and beyond the call of duty. And for them all, we have two words spoken from the heart — "Thank You".

As sure as the Vernal Equinox occurs every year, so does the annual illness that accompanies it. This pseudo-illness is also known as spring fever. There were few who remained well when it struck this year. Apparently, the entire school population was affected by some form of the disease.

The exact cause of the disease was never pinpointed by our medical experts; but the symptoms were obvious. There was the severe problem of losing interest in school. An apathetic feeling spread through the school like wildfire. Although the students were never in need of medical attention, there was a huge rise in the rate of absenteeism.

The teachers, however, managed to trudge through the epidemic. By never letting up on the academic load, most students were forced by the teachers into amazing recoveries.

Fortunately, most students became well enough to continue on for the remaining portion of the school year. The results of the epidemic were so widespread that the administration is considering investing in inoculations for the next attack.

SPORTS

A NATURAL HIGH

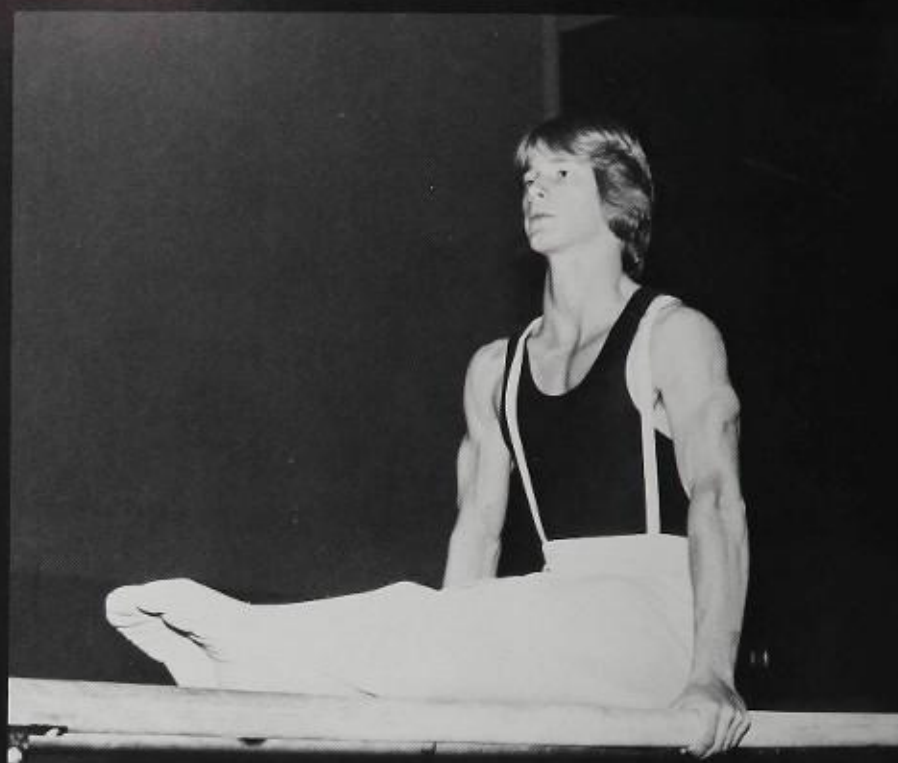

What could equal the crack of a bat meeting a ball? Who could hold a candle to the thrill of a basketball sinking into its basket? What could compare with the joy experienced as a projected pigskin hustled, spindled, soared in a perfect arc to find its way into the waiting arms of a jubilant Willingboro athlete?

Willingboro High is where spectators, competitors and musicians shared a collective feeling of excitement, where spirits climbed upward higher and higher toward a magnificent natural high.

While hoop stars Rich Bostic and Kevin Smith await the rebound Danny Wright scales the opposition, exemplifying the high caliber of Chimera athletes.

Cross Country teammates Robert Kirby, Ron Russell and Wendell Jones pace themselves against a group of tough Kennedy runners.

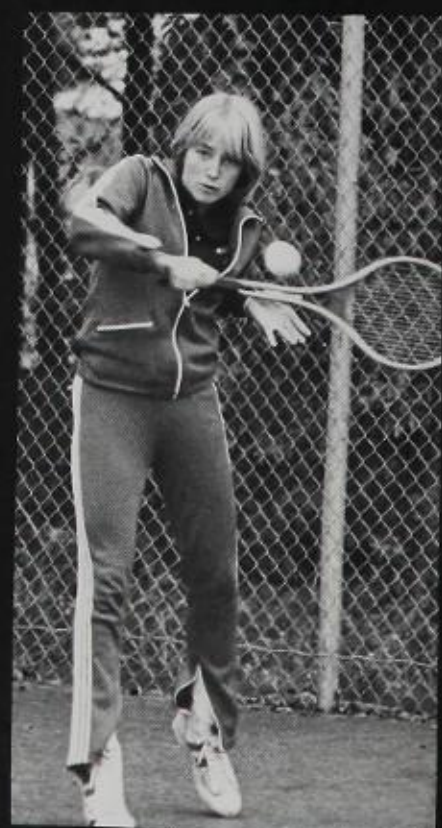

Demonstrating a polished technique, Men's Gymnastics co-captain Eric Jackle executes his parallel bar routine.

Adding enthusiasm and spirit to the season's football games are the Varsity Cheerleaders.

During half-time, Head Coach Mulder and Assistant Coach Merlino discuss game-winning strategy with Rico Esteves, Steve Allendorf and the rest of the Varsity Soccer Team.

Running out of room while making a fine backhand shot, Kathy Kilpatrick provides some Senior experience to the Women's Tennis Team.

FALL SPORTS: JUST WARMING UP

During a stoppage of play, Head Coach Chuck Gillis takes advantage of the new ruling allowing coaches to take the field, to brief the Chimera squad on a team strategy.

The Chimera Fall Sports program was, for the most part, one of success, and on the whole, one of dedication.

Our Field Hockey Team captured the Group IV State Championship, while the Varsity Soccer Team and the undefeated Men's Gymnastics Team entered State Competition, losing only in the near final rounds. The Women's Gymnastics Team compiled an impressive winning record along with the Women's Tennis and Cross Country teams. The Chimera Football Team was plagued with several early injuries which hampered the hopes for a winning season.

Our Sports Programs are considered superior in respect to others in the County and State, and the outcome of our Fall Season reassured us of keeping our reputation as an experienced and competitive school.

As the teams returned from Championship victories or defeats, they returned to a school which was both enthusiastic and proud of their dedication. Though it appeared to be the end, we realized it was really only the beginning of another great year of sports.

In the State Championship game against Westfield, Jackie Campbell regains control after scoring the only three goals of the game as Sandy Jaskol urges her on.

Individual Championship competitor Eileen Brennen performs her superb balance beam routine.

While keeping the ball out of her opponent's grasp, Sandy Jaskol successfully passes downfield.

In hope of triumph, Coach DiColo directs her team downfield.

FIELD HOCKEY: WE KNEW WE NEVER LOST IT

Cathy Schrier successfully defends our goal by flicking the ball out of dangerous territory.

As the team rests during the half time break at the State Final match against Westfield, Coach DiColo explains third quarter strategy.

After a heartbreaking loss of the State Championship title last year, the Chimera Field Hockey Team entered their fourth season determined to bring it back. The returning Seniors remembered the fine feeling of victory from two years back. Several talented underclassmen completed the team to classify it as unbeatable.

The team accomplished their goal with apparent ease, shutting out their opponents in the regular season twelve out of sixteen games, then by racking up an unblemished record in the State Championship Playoffs. The closeness of the team members combined with unmatched talent provided us with a State recognized and respected team.

The powerful Offense was led by Jackie Campbell who broke the all-time South Jersey scoring record with 37 season goals. Heather Swangler, Carol Pacheco and Colleen Schroeder also shared in the prestige of having scored a total of 63 season goals.

The Defense was led by Sandy Jaskol, Debbie Faktorow, Cathy Schrier, Kelly Shaw, Jackie Williams and Sherri Delk. Throughout the entire season they held their opponents to a remarkable 5 goals.

Backing up the team was Head Coach Linda DiColo along with Assistant Coaches Debbie Cantwell and Sue Dinn. All three are extremely proud of their teams, including the Junior Varsity squad who had a strong season with a 9-6-1 record.

Not only a team with the Liberty Division, South Jersey and State Championship titles, this squad was a group with character: honor students, class and club officers and multi-sport athletes, a unique combination to our school and to sports in general.

Long live the great Chimera Hockey tradition!

IT'S ALL A PART OF THE GAME: FOOTBALL

It was not simply a toss of the coin, nor the kickoff that was to determine the success of the Chimera Varsity Football Team. The overwhelming odds were against the relatively small but experienced team who suffered the year before because of the mid-season teacher's strike, and who suffered again because of the many Senior team members who graduated last year.

Their attempts, though in earnest, turned sour in the first two games against Moorestown and Holy Cross. The tables then made a turn for the better as we went on to defeat Lenape and Shawnee. The rest of the season was of course, history. The team ended it's season with a record of 2-7.

Coaches Gillis, Belford, Collins and Howe all worked the team and tried to strive for perfection, but ended up following the team on it's last slow walk back to the locker room after a tough Kennedy loss.

SETTING A GOAL: SOCCER

After losing 10 Seniors last year to graduation, the Chimera soccer team set out expecting a rebuilding year and a record to match. So as they looked back on the season's 17-4-1 record, they realized the fine job they had accomplished. Winning the Liberty Division Championship and reaching the South Jersey Group IV finals were some of the goals they had reached, while the chance for a possible state title was halted by a close heartbreaking loss to Brick Township in the South Jersey finals, 3-2.

The Chimeras were also invited to represent the Liberty Division in the South Jersey Coaches Tournament placing third by beating Deptford 5-2 in the consolation game.

Seniors Warren Heins, Tim Donovan, Pat Welch, John Skinner, John Eagle, Steve Allendorf, Dave Long, Peter Hörwing, Rico Esteves, Bob McCleery, and Dave Gill will be sorely missed, but returning juniors Nick Juengert, Steve Erdman, Chris Snyder, Joe Skwara, Mike Messey, Jim McCarty, John Dimbat, Glenn Brennan, and Sophomores Ray Goon and Bruce Bellinger will be back to carry the Chimera soccer tradition to even higher accolades.

Controlling the ball oftentimes requires a daring feat of balance as shown by this player in flight.

CROSS COUNTRY: SETTING THE PACE

Self-discipline is one of the most important characteristics of a Cross Country runner. To run for miles at a time for practice and then to go out on a course and do it all again for a meet is both mentally and physically demanding. The team, coached by Mike Matthews, was a unique group of athletes with some valuable experience.

Senior Bob Mann compiled personal titles just as fast as the team completed their winning season. After winning individual competition in the Liberty Division, he continued to place third in Burlington County and fourth in the South Jersey Meet. Other top Seniors are Mike Mullen, Ron Russell and Bob Eck. Combined with consistent performing Juniors Rodney Gooch and Robert Cunningham, the team provided Coach Matthews with a wide range of winning talent.

WOMEN'S TENNIS: TAKE IT TO THE COURT

Senior Audrey Gan prepares to return the ball with her devastating backhand.

Competition has become great in the area of Women's Sports, and Tennis is no exception.

The team members worked long and hard practices and performed with determination during matches. These performances were usually overlooked and seemed unimportant but the real success of a team could frequently go unnoticed.

Though they did not compile a spectacular season record, a year of experience can improve a team remarkably.

The fine Chimera squad led by Seniors Lucy Booth, Natalie Greene and Marilyn Wesley, provided the necessary experience needed to improve significantly in their short season. A talented group of Juniors will provide Coach Carl Reitinger with a solid foundation for next year.

CAN'T EVEN BE KEPT BEHIND BARS: MEN'S GYMNASTICS

Gymnastics is a sport which requires a great deal of effort. The athletes who participate on such teams work hard, long hours practicing routines, building strength and developing their skills in their individual events.

This was another year that the Chimera squad was the finest. Compiling an undefeated record is not such an easy thing to do when you meet up with such tough competition throughout the season. The Team did, however, win all its matches, and earned the right to compete in statewide competition where they showed a fine championship effort.

Sophomore Patty Morrison in deep concentration as the Chimera Squad swings another victory.

The spectators gaze in awe at the graceful competition in the events of Women's Gymnastics. But rarely does the observer realize the many grueling, and oftentimes disappointing practices when the routines were just falling into place.

The team, while not compiling a record as successful as the Men, had a very fine season and boasted some very talented individuals as well. Some of the outstanding gymnasts were: Eileen Brennen, Paula Houston and Theresa Oulette. Coach Connie Klein developed a fine squad and sees a good future for the Chimera Gymnastics program.

BACKING US UP: CHEERLEADERS

When thinking of all the sports teams of WHS, one tends to overlook the hard working, always smiling cheerleaders behind our great athletes. These talented girls loyally supported our football, basketball, and soccer teams on the warmest autumn days and coldest winter nights. And no matter how many wins or how many losses, our girls always showed enthusiasm and maintained bright spirits.

Even from the sidelines, the squad cheers on the Chimeras against the Cherry Hill East Basketball team. Behind Judy Genovese, Pam Milam, Sonoma Greer, Lisa Oliver, Joanne Ezze and Michael Weiss in the next row are: Mary Bilton and Coach Jeanne Strickland.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Mr. Richard P. Luttrell

Mrs. Rose Laughlin

The work of an Athletic Director, though it affects some several hundred athletes a day and it witnessed by most all, seldom seems to receive recognition. The work of Mr. Richard Luttrell and Mrs. Rose Laughlin is endless. After all, what team will survive without competition officials, and more importantly, a schedule and an opponent?

While all else stood still in the midst of the blistery chill of winter, the Chimera Winter Season Sports Program warmed the spirits of the many players and spectators.

Men's and Women's Basketball, Wrestling, Winter Track and the Swimming and Diving Teams all competed to fill the calendars of December, January and February with a wide spectrum of exciting athletic competition.

The Chimera Squads continued our past reputation of County and Statewide recognition as the Women's Basketball, Men's Basketball and Track Teams consisted of strong and talented team members who combined to rack up superb winning season records.

Chimera Guard Ken Moseley puts the ball up against three defenders in a victory against Cherry Hill East.

ABOVE THE CROWD: MEN'S BASKETBALL

Out of the varying Winter Sports, Men's Basketball and it's genetic counterpart were the most popular and seemed to be the most exciting of the athletic activities.

We knew the players and saw their several preseason and seasonal injuries and often wonder how such a pain-stricken team could pull off such a spectacular season. The Chimera squad was a team with a lot of depth. They were quick, had good height and consisted of a group of experienced and talented athletes.

Their dominance was shown by winning the Big Mac Classic and their fine overall record.

Returning Seniors on the Chimera Squad are: Ken Mosley, John Wilson, Walter Brown, Kevin Smith, Danny Wright, Howard Shelton, and Charles Hurd.

The Chimera Women's Basketball Team entered the 1978-79 Season sporting a 25-game winning streak, including a Group IV State Championship and number one State ranking. The talented group of players were some of the finest students around, and in many cases, two and three sport athletes who were determined to prove that the Chimera Women's athletic program was the best to be found.

This year's team was led Senior All-South-Jersey selectees: Guard Channie Hallett and Forward Jackie Campbell who were the teams leading scorers. Sandy Jaskol was the teams leading rebounder and Wanda Newton was the team's floor general.

WE'VE GOT THE MOVES: WRESTLING

On the sidelines, Coach Pettrizi, Jeff Chinn and teammates study the action on the mat.

The Varsity and Junior Varsity Wrestling Teams were, again, two of the least glorified Chimera athletic teams. The squad was recognized as a good contender in a tough league and was rightfully respected for their fine performances.

The Chimera Wrestlers had a talented lineup which included Seniors: Mayo Goldman, Jeff Chinn, Danny Bowens, Bob Eck, Don Greene, Joe Prorok, Pete Krsnak and Phillip Jones.

Coach Pettrizi is looking forward to a solid team in coming years in his experienced underclass team members.

ALWAYS ON THE RIGHT TRACK:

WINTER TRACK

The 1978-79 Chimera Winter Track program was one of its most successful in the few years it has been in existence. Head Coach Andy Dudek and Assistant Coach Mike Matthews molded together a superb group of athletes to dominate every meet they competed in which consisted of a minimum of thirty different schools.

Captains of the Chimera squad were Bob Mann, Dave DeSantis, Chuck Spinner, Alex Grimes, Carl Lewis and Marc Dickerson. Other outstanding team members included Sophomores Robert Cunningham, Devon Sanders, and Louis Houston; Juniors Tim Frieson and Rodney Gooch; and Senior Mike Mullen.

The Team Competitions were held regularly at Widner College where the following teams were recognized as powerhouses: Mile Relay, 2 Mile Relay, Distance Medley, and Shuttle Hurdle Teams. Individual honors were achieved by Marc Dickerson in the hurdles, Bob Mann in the mile and 880 run, and Carl Lewis in the 50 and 60 yard dash. Senior Carl Lewis also received National recognition as the East Coast Champion in the long jump.

County Record holder Marc Dickerson passes the baton to Relay Team member Everet Harvin.

KEEPING COOL IN THE POOL: MEN'S AND WOMEN'S SWIMMING AND DIVING

The Men's Swimming and Diving Teams, under the leadership of Captain Jim Cummings and Coach Connie Klein managed to complete a fine season of competition. The Diving Team consisted of only two returning members, Kevin Buckley and Frank Annetchini, however did find young talent in Sophomore Mike Kautzman.

The Women's Teams under Coach Jackie Previtti and Captain Kim Price also finished out a respectable season. The success of both teams could be seen in their ability almost every year to send representatives to State Competition.

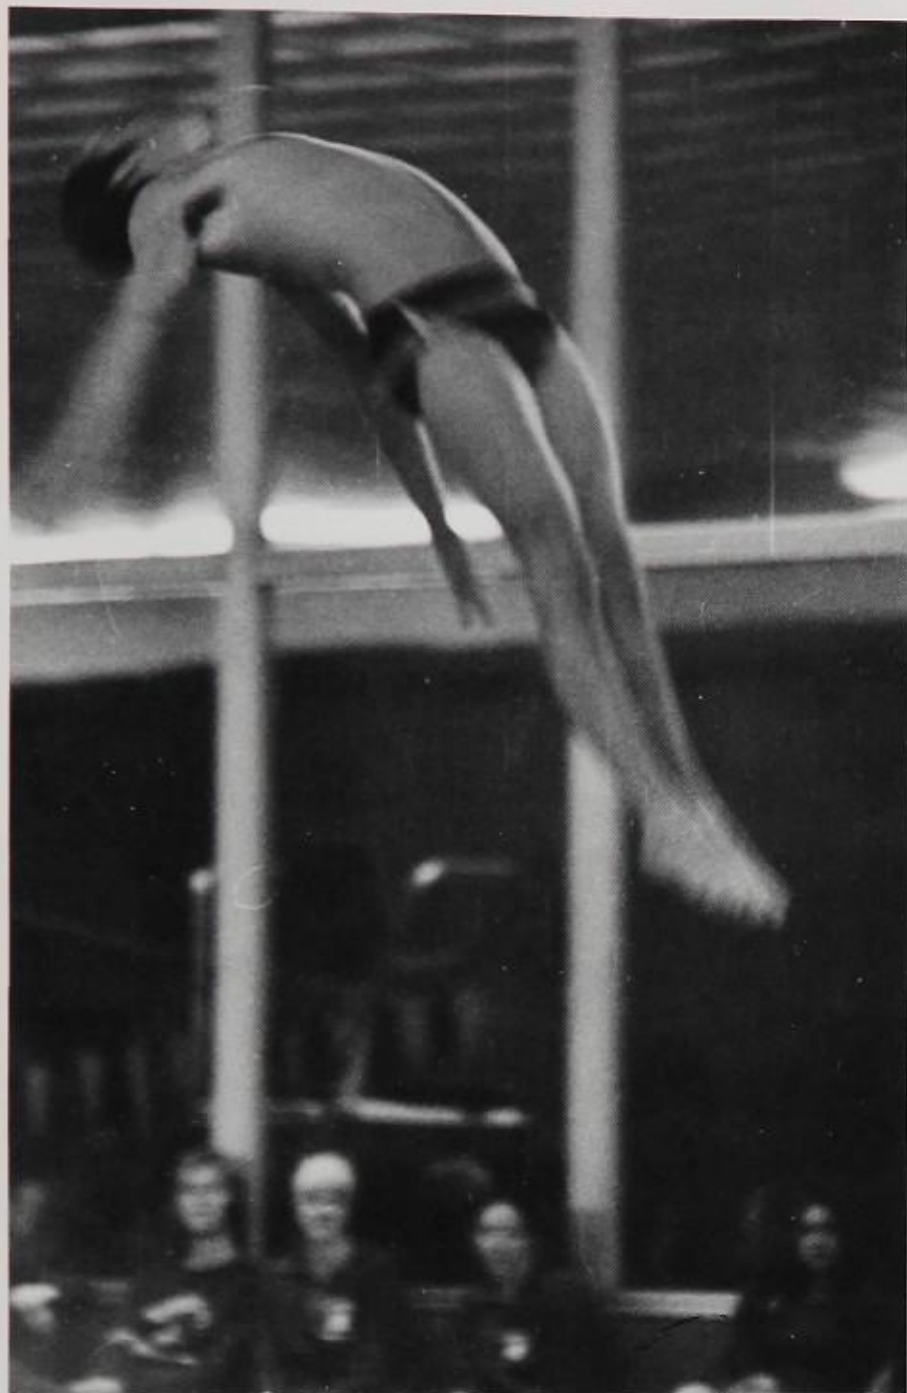

Both teams faced many difficulties in their lack of nearby facilities, however the use of the Burlington County College provided the squads with a pool to use for practice and competition, with which they developed a fine group with good talent.

Spring Sports: The Final Season

Along with the winter thaw and sunny warm afternoons of early March came the sports team's tryouts for the final season of the 1979 school year. In an athletic oriented school such as Willingboro, the competition in school for a position on a Varsity squad was keen and required a great deal of talent and effort.

The Baseball and Softball teams, both of which have in the past boasted fine season records, flocked the fields to shape and trim a competitive squad. The Men's and Women's track teams hit the track to make their times and reach their distances. The remaining Lacrosse, Tennis and Golf teams all organized and made plans for the season.

After the cold and exciting Winter season of indoor action, it was great to be back outside for another fine Spring Sports Season.

Track team members Tim Frieson, Marc Dickerson, Alex Grimes leap the hurdles with determination.

With crosse in hand, Heather Swangler completes a pass.

SWINGING SINGLES: BASEBALL

The 1979 Chimera Baseball Squad was led by Seniors Bob Solinski, Jim Baumann, John Skinner, George Vandenberg, Joe Prorok and Captain Mike Behrend, Head Coach By Hopkins and his staff, Assistant Coaches Carlos Merlino and Ted Rothstein.

Assisant Coach Merlino, Head Coach Hopkins and Assistant Coach Rothstein load the ammunition into the automatic pitching machine.

Senior Mike Behrend checks his swing on an outside low pitch.

Senior John Skinner connects with the ball.

SOFTBALL

The 1979 Softball Team was led by Seniors Jackie Campbell (captain), Channie Hallett, Lucy Booth and Kathy Kilpatrick. Head Coach Don Enders and Assistant Coach Howard Cohen molded a fine talented group of girls into a superb squad of athletes.

Head Coach Enders drills batters with his own power pitch.

Jackie Williams executes a fine bunt.

Early season indoor practice allowed Jackie Williams to perfect her throwing form.

Junior, Colleen Schroder, swings for a home run.

Managers Claudin Givens, Karen Kelleher, and Robene Fleming take a well earned break from compiling statistics.

Chuck Spinner practices with the shot put.

Anthony Molina, Fred Williams and Chris Taylor lead the pack during a pre-season run.

LIFE IN THE FAST LANE: MEN'S TRACK

They were unbeatable; a continual winning combination. County, State and National record makers and record streakers. When speed and distance were required, that is where the Chimera Men's Track team belonged.

Senior captains Carl Lewis, Bob Mann, Marc Dickerson, Gary Stewart and Dave DeSantis led the squad for the 1979 season along with Coaches Paul Minore, Andy Dudek, Mike Matthews, Jack Mulder and P. Marino.

Senior, Bob Mann leading warmups.

Senior, Alex Grimes, perfects his wimming form on the high hurdles.

The remaining returning Seniors include: Alex Grimes, Everett Harvin, Donovan Greene, Ron Harper, Gerald Johnson, Fred Williams, Mike Mullen. Wayne Cobb, Wendall Jones, Dwight Molina, Anthony Molina, Ron Russell and Bobby Dodd.

THE RIGHT FOOT FIRST: WOMEN'S TRACK

In deep concentration, the Girls Track team practices the starting block position.

Although their team wasn't in existence very long, their competitiveness and spirit has made the Women's Track Team one of the best in the county.

Coach Evelyn Lewis hoped to gain a positive season with Seniors: Natalie Greene, Oliva Manely, Michal Weiss, Samara Bracy, Hilary Gilyard, Mary Bilton, Stephanie Cohen, Allyson Gregory, Renee Kellum, Shirley Bowman, Debbie Brown, Channie Hallet, and Robin Wright.

With room to spare, Frances Dutton clears the hurdle.

A YEAR IN SPORTS: WRAPPING IT UP

Well, another year has come and gone and the Chimera Athletes have done it again. In only our fourth year of existence the athletes have set a standard of excellence attainable by only a few schools in the state. And this year provided an equally outstanding program.

Such teams as the Girl's Field Hockey, Gymnastics, Softball, Soccer, Basketball, Wrestling and Track teams turned in fine records and represented the school well in tournament competition.

Other teams, while not posting as outstanding records, showed sportsmanship of only the finest quality and added class to the name Chimera.

WHAT IT ALL COMES DOWN TO

One-hundred thirty two was the number that made our years here interesting, boring, fun and on occasion exhilarating. One-hundred thirty two was the number of faculty members that made this building what it is. Many of these members went above and beyond the call of duty to make certain that our years here were a sensation.

These professionals were known by numerous names, depending on whether we approved or disapproved of them. Some were given affectionate pet names which often depicted their personalities: Brummy, Smears, The Doc, Uncle Barry, Kid Karl, Old Lady Cole, Praying Mantis, Ms. Recipe, The Wicked Witch of the West, Ms. Sewer, Hop, Schlenk, Little Dee, Chicken Legs, and "Dr. J".

They lent us money, they bought our products, they in every way possible tried to alleviate the weight of three years of classes. For years, teachers had been thought of as cold, hard, ruthless figures knowing nothing but the facts, but those of us who got to know them, really got to know them. We'll remember what they tried to teach us, and what priorities there are in life. And that's what it all comes down to.

This year, as any other, the Board of Education and Central Administration were essential parts of our school. They made decisions that drastically affected the course of our year. They made the decision to adopt our Attendance Policy, and also what punishment to give its violators. They also extended the classroom time of some of vocational courses. No matter what students think about their decisions, it must be understood that the Board of Education and Central Administration are making these decisions for the good of all concerned.

Many students became familiar with the Festrual brothers, those wild and crazy guys, from TV's "Saturday Night Live." They were always working hard at their favorite vocation: "swinging." All students became familiar with another small group, the WHS administrators, who were always working hard at their favorite vocation: keeping Willingboro High running smoothly.

At the top was Dr. John Wasinda, always calm, stately, and satisfied, keeping everyone in the swing of things. One Assistant Principal was Robert Trama who, when confronted by a student request, would always see if he could swing it. The other Assistant Principal was Anthony DiPietro, formerly of Kennedy High, who would swing 'round at the sound of his name to converse with a concerned student. Finally, there was the Vice-Principal Joseph O'Donnell, of Levitt Junior High, who kept the students morale on the upswing.

Perhaps they weren't as uncontrolled or insane as the girl-chasing, cruising Festrual brothers, but they certainly were swinging, and thereby have earned the name "Those Wild and Crazy Guys."

Remember the September frenzy, when people had two and three courses scheduled for the same period? Guidance to the rescue! Whether it was fixing our schedules, helping us with colleges, or finding us jobs, the guidance counselors were always there when we needed their help or just a sympathetic ear. It was always nice to know that beyond the crowd waiting for their appointment was a group of men and women ready to give us their time and knowledge.

One of the pressing questions seniors like Joe Grabowski have to make, with the help of his counselors, is which college to attend.

Special Ed.

If you were to ask someone to describe the special ed program he would probably answer by saying it was a program for students with a learning problem. It was not that, at least not in Willingboro's case, in fact, far from it. The participants showed throughout the year that they did not have a problem to be corrected, but a need to be fulfilled.

Each student was given personal help and guidance toward greater achievement and realization of their total potential. This assisted in giving the students and augmented sense of accomplishment in their daily endeavors. Not only that, but the pupils learned how to work together in a warm environment. It was this that made the Special Education program truly special.

From the average eye one could not have begun to foresee the creativity that evolved from the skillful hands of the art students. Careful renderings of ideas were formed, leaving a silent visual media critiqued by an eager public of student and faculty.

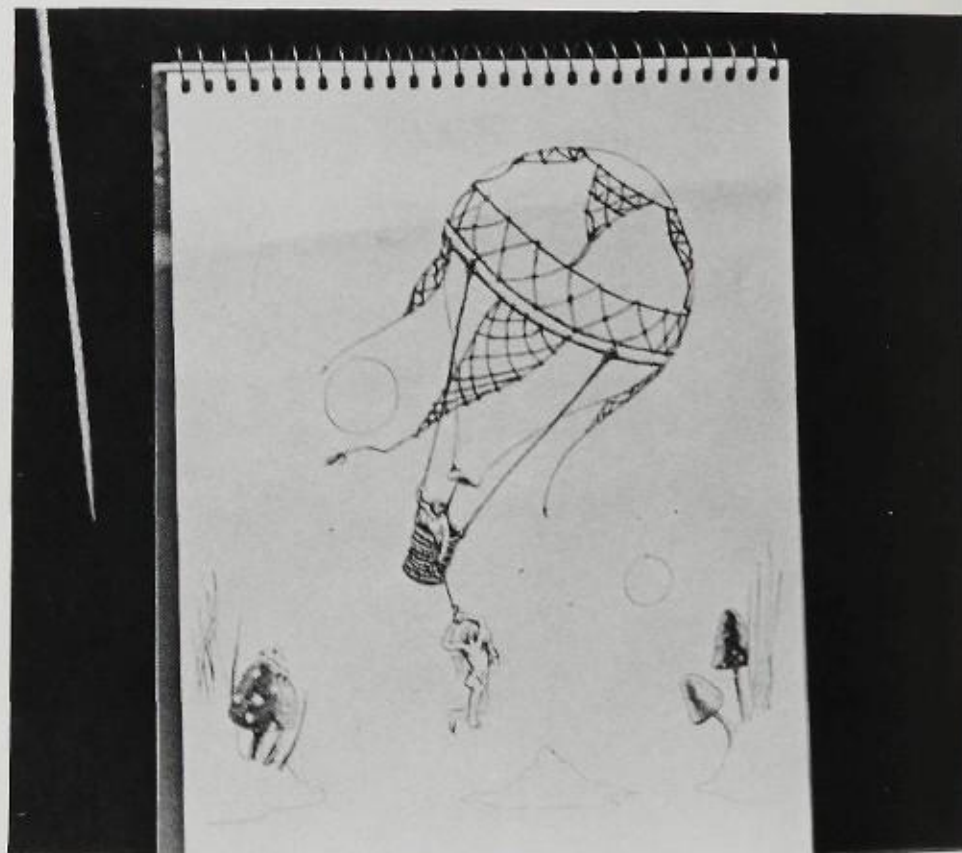

Students in Ms. Denzler's art classes use her peculiar collection of artifacts to create some amazing and creative designs.

FOR OUR OWN GOOD

Everything was good and well on paper, but when it came to the real test, the "new and improved" attendance policy was six pages of rules to which none paid very much attention.

More time was spent listening to the reading of the rules, the passing out of these rules and the reiteration time and time again until our minds were dulled.

It was generally disliked by both students and teachers. Students had the distinct feeling of being confined to these boundaries for six and a half hours. To teachers it was filling out endless forms and keeping close tabs on absences.

Seniors, especially who liked to "stay home" or go out during school found themselves extremely restricted.

The Board of Appeals was so far-fetched from our minds that when it came time to deal with it some of us weren't ready for the worst. Whether we were successful in our attempts with the Board and the policy, or we lost the battle, we knew it was here to stay.

Students Rusty Ryan, Rosa Phillips, Andre Wright and David Rouse wait in the all too familiar LATE LINE.

After all his absences, Craig Wheeler has to be present mentally and physically.

Warden Bryson holds the files!

Student Warren Heinz just makes it through as they close the gates.

Student Gov't President, John Skinner tries to keep up with the new attendance policy . . .

Students' Views

I know deep down inside that the new attendance policy is for my own good. I have the best attendance record this year that I have ever had. I do believe that as an 18 year old senior, I have enough common "sence" to be here when I am supposed to. I regret that I am not able to use my own descretion as to when I am here and when I am not!

I think that the new attendance policy had merit, but that in its present form it will cause more confusion, than the effective results which it strives to achieve!

Just last night I had a dream in which I was absent too many times and thrown to the LIONS!!!

I love it. I just wish it was a little more lenient on punishment. Pulling out the criminals hair by the roots after six absences is a little too much!

It's crazy, and it's for our own good, but who wants a perfect school! What would we have to complain about?

Are student council should be on the board's back about this acrimous and prison like treatment!

It's a good thing, something had to be done!!!

This school is taking away the student's responsibilities little by little, and this gives the student less preparation for the real world!

I Love It! It's about time the rogues, peasants, cretins, and otherwise goof-offs in this school got a little punishment after year of leniency — it really made me sick!

In my opinion, the whole attendance policy is ridiculously stupid. We're not supposed to be in jail, we're in school. And we're not little babies now!!!

Welcoming Peter Horwing and Nazila Safari-Astaraee with Chimera hospitality is Principal Dr. John Wasinda.

At first glance Peter Horwing seemed like the "All American Boy." He rode skateboards, went discoing, and played soccer. There was only one exception, he was from Sweden.

Nazila Safari Astaraee came right out of the pages of Glamour. She dressed like an American fashion model. The only difference was that she, like Peter, came from out-of-town. Teheran, Iran was her home.

These two worldly people were exchange students at W.H.S. We can rightfully say "they've been around."

Peter Horwing studies closely the environment and people around him and listens to their conversation.

TWO, WHO GET AROUND.

THE FACTS OF LIFE

R. Beverly: A single kind word keeps one warm for three winters.

M. Katz: Give someone a fish dinner — he or she eats for a day. Teach him or her to fish — he or she eats for a lifetime!

M. Master: Sometimes it is better to keep your mouth shut and appear stupid than to open it and remove all doubt! — Mark Twain.

W. McGrath: Don't let high school interfere with your education!

F. Schuenemann: Putting bricks in a book is a snap, but putting books in a brick makes you wonder if PV really does equal K.

L. Smires: No dying in class!

R. Touch: In life, set high, realistic goals — even if you fall a little short, you will achieve some measure of success.

A. Welton: He who laughs last . . . didn't get the joke!

It's ironical that Peter Hörwing enjoys the taste of an American fruit drink at a German class party.

The importance of comfort is expressed by students as their outstretched limbs overhang neighboring chairs.

As Cheryl Lipski demonstrates, many students make clowns of themselves.

Look, look up in the sky! Is it a bird? No. Is it a plane? Well, sort of. It's a paper airplane flying out of an Algebra class. And over here an industrious lad is drawing. What is it? Perhaps a new element. Perhaps a new cure for cancer. No, just a rather good drawing of Marcia. At last, someone is taking notes. "Dear Marcia, I cannot . . ." This classroom is a veritable jungle. I've tried to escape . . . DRAT! I've been spotted . . . What's that young man? . . . Who was that lady you saw me with last night? That was no lady. That was Marcia.

A VERITABLE JUNGLE

Gym classes at the "boro" offer students a wide array of choices. Jim Harvey tries his hand at bowling and rolls a strike.

Student Bob Mann and friends gather in a group discussion over the journalistic information presented before them.

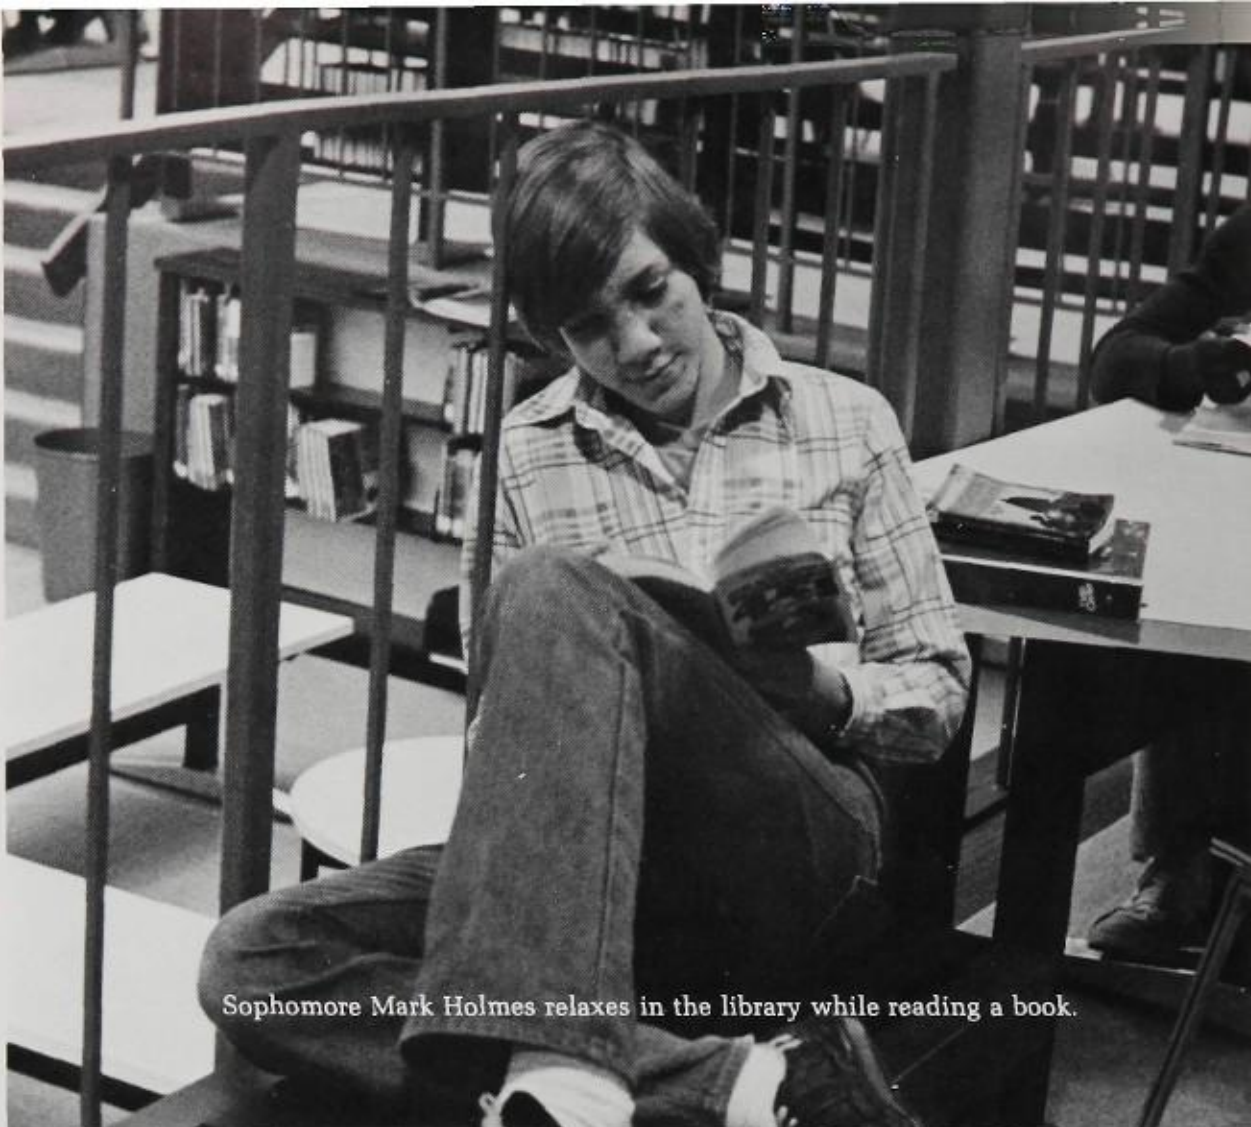

Students Michelle Quinn, Dot Rogers, and Brian Richards enjoy relaxing while attendance is being taken in gym class.

Striking a pose for our photographer, Pam Milam, stresses the importance of spontaneity.

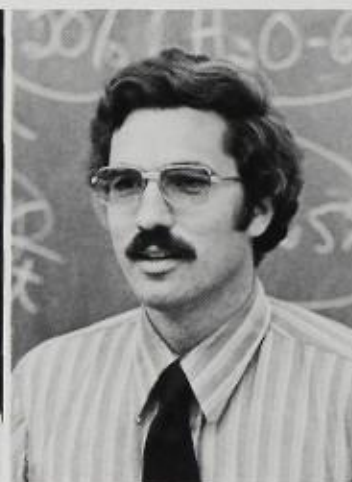

UPSTAIRS, DOWNSTAIRS

Remember the library? Your teacher took you in upstairs where you were told to stay with your class. You then went to use the card catalog . . . which was downstairs. It told you where to find a book: upstairs. Eagerly you bounded up to find the book, that gave you a good cross-reference. Down to the card catalog you ran, and up to the aforementioned book, which was downstairs, and to another book (upstairs) that gave you a magazine article (which was downstairs). You returned to replace the books and to be dismissed with your class. You left class and went downstairs to your locker to get your books for your next class . . . which was upstairs.

Sophomore Mark Holmes relaxes in the library while reading a book.

PRACTICAL LEARNING

Vocational students can generally expect to put their learning to practical use soon after graduation. The skills they have learned at the "boro" should give them an advantage in joining the work force of our area.

The students of Willingboro High School were quite active in their very diversified music program this year. There were a variety of musical activities from which students could choose. These activities ranged from a dynamic Concert/Marching Band and an excellent Orchestra, for the serious instrumentalist; to the award winning Concert Jazz Band and jammin' Rock Ensemble, for the more contemporary artist. Those who chose to contribute to the talented concert choir enjoyed a successful year with their new director, Mrs. Shapiro.

Throughout the year, all of us bumped elbows, so to speak, with many helpful people. We asked a hall aide for directions when we got lost, got our lunch card from a secretary and bought the last ice-cream sandwich from the lunch aides.

It was these people, the aides, that made our educational world go around.

Need Help?

Lunch period is always a time to gather and socialize with friends, as these students show.

For years on end humanity has been searching for the "Perfect Teacher." Although we have not found him or her yet, there are teachers with some of the necessary qualities for the "Perfect Teacher." In our poll in which students and faculty alike took part, we found the necessary qualities of the "Perfect Teacher" to be the following:

1. Under 94 years old
 2. Understanding
 3. Intelligent
 4. Attractive
 5. Outgoing
 6. Trusting
 7. Jovial
 8. Creative
 9. Sexy
- and above all
10. HUMAN!!!!

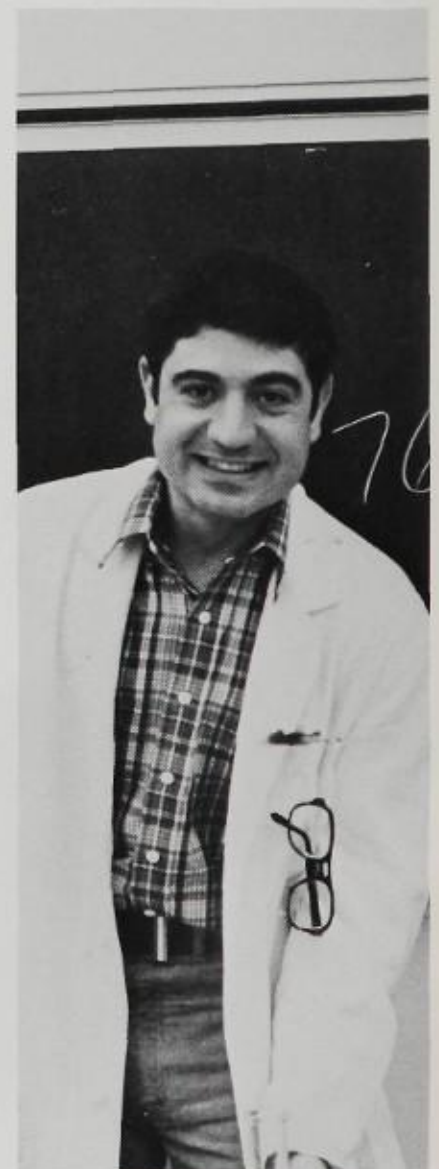

The perfect teacher should always wear smile like Ms. Klein. But wouldn't you if you were Sophomore Class advisor?

Many of our teachers exhibit seven or eight of the above characteristics, but we have found none to exhibit all ten with the exceptions of . . .

The perfect music teacher should follow Mr. Schlenker's example and always start his class on the right note.

The perfect teacher should be full of enthusiasm like science teacher, Mr. Nasife.

NOBODY'S PERFECT ?

Physic's teacher Mr. Gilligan, shows how the perfect teacher should be ever alert to his surroundings.

Exemplifying the perfect teacher, Mr. Garant is always poised.

The perfect teacher should always keep his wits about him as portrayed by Mr. Cosgrove.

Business teacher, Ms. Seward exhibits two more traits of the perfect teacher, trust and cheerfulness.

YOU HAVE TO LET GO SOMETIME

“Free at last!” may have been the final sigh after graduation, but life was only beginning for us as we walked away with diploma in hand. We were finished with the applications, the tests and other extraordinary responsibilities that came with our seniority.

When we took off our caps and hung up our diplomas, we realized that for the past eighteen years we had maintained a stronghold on home. With graduation came our Declaration of Independence; a thrilling reality laced with the terror of being alone, on our own and the awakening realization that “you gotta let go sometime.”

2:30, a time all Willingboro High School students love.

What We'll Remember Most . . .

Student Pat Tighe catches a smoke between classes.

Students exercise their smoking privilege.

What do you remember most about school?

. . . The '78 Gong Show, especially Punk Rock and the Unknown Comic (J.P.S.)

. . . Slave Day: having to pull B.M. in a red wagon to class and tipping him out and going to class without him (S.L.M.)

. . . Making sure I had chocolate chip cookies and chocolate milk everyday at lunch (R.M.M.)

. . . The Chimera on the middle of the basketball court (C.G.H.)

. . . Every year they change the rules for the Class of '79 (V.Y.)

. . . The time the vacuum cleaner blew up. (L.S.C.)

. . . The smelly chem labs & how I never could figure out what wavelength Mr. E. was on (M.J.M.)

. . . That it's full of up's and down's (L.M.H.)

. . . The infinite number of male and female Rona Barretts we have (H.S.G.)

. . . The very good friends I have made here! (H.M.S.)

. . . Being an "Evil Baddy" (C.E.S.)

. . . The agony of defeat when I moved and the thrill of victory when I came back (B.J.S.)

. . . The DECA trip to the Playboy Club (L.B.S.)

. . . The lack of intelligence within (B.A.G.)

. . . The crazy people and times we had at track meets & practices (pole vaulting through the lobby, under the doors, and into air conditioners! (D.A.D.)

. . . All the homework, the babes, and the parties (E.M.L.)

. . . The strike (C.C.S.)

Mr. Trama and Dr. Wasinda are two of the four-man anchor team that most of us will remember.

- . . . This is the best school I have ever gone to (K.T.M.)
- . . . Its superiority in all sports (J.A.B.)
- . . . All the sports I was in and how strict everything was (A.J.G.)
- . . . The prison booms with no windows (R.J.B.)
- . . . That the school sank in '75 (W.C.F.)
- . . . Slave days, graduating, study halls & going there (A.P.G.)
- . . . The Gong Show (J.R.G.)
- . . . The change in the school's absentee and lateness policy (T.S.D.)
- . . . J.S.'s close encounter with the green slime (M.S.D.)
- . . . Work and a lot of good times, late night mail deliveries to Tenby Chase (K.J.K.)
- . . . Walking through the mud just to get to school!?!? (G.B.I.)
- . . . The day J.S. asked me to the prom and the day he found out I could go (V.A.S.)

Some of us will remember the Chimera on the gym floor.

Pencils are souvenirs of Mr. Phipps C.P. English classes.

- . . . My first band rehearsal with Mr. J. (R.D.W.)
- . . . I remember MS. B. always yelling at us because we never worked (K.M.B.)
- . . . Meeting P. in Mr. M.'s English class (R.J.M.)

What is the funniest thing that has happened to you in W.H.S.?

. . . Getting caught drawing faces on our paper of the reproduction systems in Mrs. Morris' class in 11th grade (S.G.)

. . . I hit a ping-pong ball into the lobby and B. almost knocked down a Pepsi man trying to get it (K.A.)

. . . Getting thrown outside naked for track initiation and two people were outside laughing (R.R.)

. . . Spilled tub of water in Chemistry class and had to mop it up (M.C.)

. . . The day C.A., C.H., E.T. and friends threw me in the girls shower with my clothes on, the day of the Kennedy-W.H.S. football game (N.S.)

. . . Getting stuck on my chemistry stool doing a backbend to pick up a gum wrapper, and trying to slide down a banister (J.S.)

. . . Being forced to eat a chocolate covered ant for sophomore initiation (W.C.)

. . . Hearing E.H. laugh (L.J.)

. . . When A.B. and K.S. attacked my hair with eggs and baby powder on my B'day in 10th grade (D.H.)

What is the funniest thing that has happened to you in W.H.S.?

. . . Running up the stairs and falling on my face (V.T.)

. . . When one of my friends tripped me in the hall in front of everyone and all my books went flying (C.D.)

. . . Falling into the water while crossing the pipe by the second hole on the way to school last year (L.D.)

. . . Last year when I was in gym and fell on my head (P.J.)

. . . Falling in the mud in the student parking lot (E.C.)

. . . When I was running up the stairs past a lot of people and I tripped up the stairs (J.R.)

. . . Falling down the back stairs with a dress on (J.Z.)

. . . Slipping on the steps, after laughing about someone else slipping (K.M.)

. . . Being tripped while going up the stairs and falling on my face and watching my books fall down the stairs (H.B.)

. . . Running to homeroom so I wouldn't be late, and slipping in the doorway (J.M.)

. . . My shoe falling off and at the same time almost falling down the stairs (G.F.)

. . . I tripped over my own feet, walking down the hall (V.E.)

. . . My pants were untied and almost fell down (M.R.)

. . . Tripping and nothing there to trip over (D.E.)

. . . When I fell from the auditorium seat (M.B.)

. . . In gym when I fell over the horse and hurt my knee (S.B.)

. . . In 10th grade, I fell out of my chair in the cafeteria (L.A.)

. . . Being my usual klutzy nature in art class and tripping over my own feet into a bunch of paints that don't come out of clothes and takes a week to wear off of your skin, and when . . . ah never mind . . . ! (D.B.)

. . . I don't call falling down the stairs funny. (D.B.)

Will Oberholtzer reenacts the zany time he got locked in the lav.

Amusement is found either during soccer practice (Steve Erdman, above) or in classroom antics (Katrina Martinez, below).

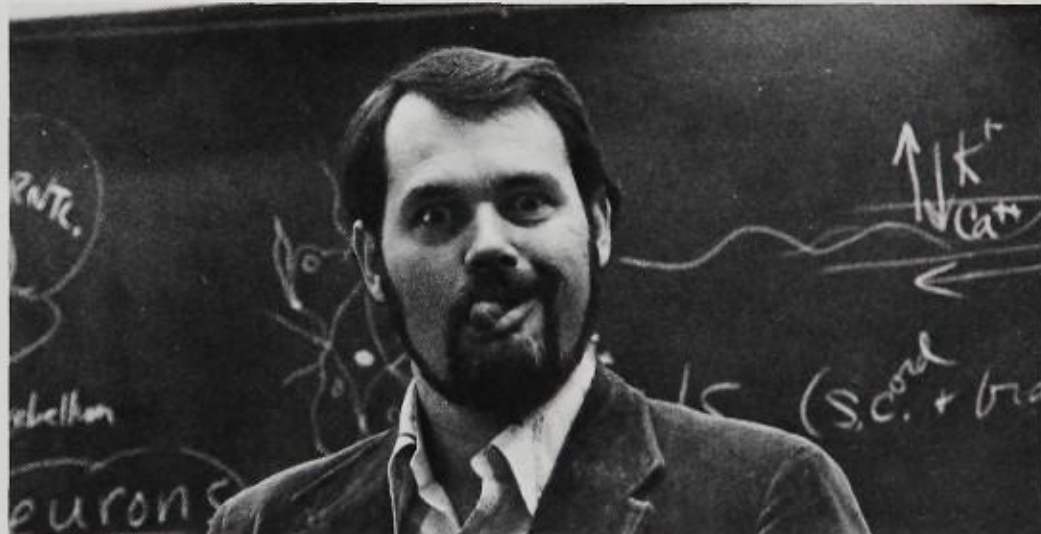

New styles in footwear are a hit on mix-and-match day.

THE FUNNIEST THINGS THAT HAPPENED . . .

. . . In Gospel choir rehearsal I was heavily concentrating on playing and in attempt to get my attention, Miss Sanders hit the top of the piano and scared me colors (W.H.)
 . . . Being initiated by the seniors my first year with the fire extinguisher (T.W.)
 . . . When I walked into the wrong class, sat down, started doing work and didn't realize I was in the wrong class until 10 minutes later (D.B.)
 . . . I had my basketball jersey on backwards in a game and had to change it under the bleachers (J.W.)
 . . . Being mistaken for someone and called down to the Attendance/Discipline office to visit Mr. Trama (K.C.)
 . . . Taking a shower during a fire drill (D.B.)

Along with the new attendance system, WHS had to adjust to the 4 minute pass-time between classes. Many students said that one minute less made a bigger difference than they expected, especially because of the teacher detention penalty for being late. However, most students would probably have agreed that as long as it ended the school day fifteen minutes earlier, the change was worth it.

The senior class officers worked hard at coordinating and directing both the fund-raisers and activities of the class' final year. The major activities — the class trip to Walt Disney World in Florida in March, and the Senior Prom in May — were long in the planning, and the successful realization of these events came about due to many hours of dedication on the part of the officers.

The fund-raisers that they organized were as varied as the members of their class. Car washes and football concessions, candy, fruit, and bake sales all helped to make the year's events happen. The winning Homecoming Float and the return of the Gong Show are proof of the time spent by the officers in preparation and production of class activities. Together with their class, they helped to make their senior year one of the best ever!

Class Advisor Mrs. Arlene Morris, Vice President Larry Siegel, and Treasurer John Jordon helped make our senior year a successful one.

Despite the cold weather, Wayne Morris, Paula Houston, John Costello, Leslie Jones and Pete Bogdan enjoy dishing out the goodies at a Chimera home football game.

Every football game reporting time was 6:30 P.M. We prepared the soda and cooked the hotdogs and served the food for what seemed to be an eternity. But felt the satisfaction that we worked to improve our class. The concession stand was as much a part of the game as were the teams, their respective bands and the supportive fans.

CZY-DIL

Casimir E. Czyzewski

Martin Alan Dallago

Midterms and finals tested our knowledge. Classes tested our patience. SAT's and achievement's tested our nerves. Finally we could make our decisions about our future. There were many different choices made. Prevalent among them was the course of going to college to receive specialized training in a field and to receive further instruction in the employment of the mind. Others chose the rigors and disciplines of a military career. Others hoped for a happy existence, in a vocation, in which they could master the use of the hands and retain the knowledge gained in high school.

Many different people will, with the class of '79, and we perhaps would see that at a distant reunion, but they all sprung from the same place: Willingboro High School.

Buying and driving this vehicle are privileges of a 17 year old.

Most Seniors have gone through the experience of not being able to borrow the family car, and know the frustration accompanying this dilemma. Well, at W.H.S. many seniors have liberated themselves by purchasing their own cars. The traffic jams near the entrance of the student parking lot revealed the large number of student car owners. So did the large number of cars with yellow bumper-stickers in the McDonald's parking lot at lunch time.

BEAT THE CLOCK

Rico M. Esteves

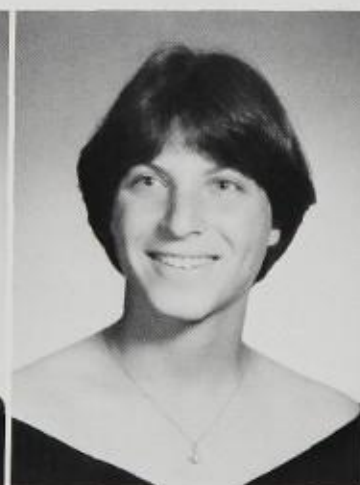

Keith A. Evans

No more Friday cut days, no twelve days absent in the last marking period, because we were limited to six days in the semester. It was a dangerous game of pick and choose. Somehow, some of us eventually found a way to "Beat the system." Or so we thought. Then came the end of the first semester. We all remember that fateful day when they started calling people to the library to break the news that graduation might be "postponed." For a week people ran around looking for notes and excuses, trying to remember where they were those days. But those who felt the crunch of the new attendance policy, didn't have to worry. They had the chance to make up for their mistakes the next year.

TEMPORARY REPRIEVE

When the Willingboro High School Store closed its doors in April of '78, the hungry students thought they would have to learn how to make it through a school day without Tasty-cakes or Bar-B-Q popcorn. Well, the joy of the distributive education students (who ran the store) and the rest of the school, our school store went back into business last October.

The profits brought in by the store were put towards field trips and competitions for the students.

Store operators, Larry Dockery and Sharon Weaver, prepare the cash register for another onslaught of hungry kids.

CENTIGRADE '79: SENIOR FEVER

After spending a long dreary winter cooped up inside, seniors suddenly found that they were infected with an incurable disease — "Senior Fever." This strange disease affected the minds of every member of the class of 1979. Symptoms of the disease turned up during the senior trip to Florida. Once they arrived in the Sunshine State seniors became different people. Through the rest of the year, seniors did everything they could to stray from the norms. The illness was diagnosed as the seniors' last attempts at enjoying their carefree high school days. Looking at all the fun they had, the trouble they caused, the enthusiasm that they spread, the seniors were successful in their last ditch efforts.

Larry Siegel was found roaming the halls in his "spy costume" during the Homecoming Freak Day.

One of this year's let downs was the change of the drinking age from 18 to 19. The sign to the left may have been familiar to seniors on March 1st, when the law became official. Even though the law probably did not have much effect on how much those of us under 19 drank, finding out that we would have to wait another year before we would be considered legal was a real disappointment.

... GO FOR BROKE!

Being a Senior was expensive business. It seemed as though the bills came in never ending streams.

First, every Senior had to have a ring. These were purchased towards the beginning of the school year. Then senior pictures were taken. Portraits, 5 x 7's and wallets, flooded the hallways as seniors exchanged mug-shots. The class was measured for caps and gowns and then payments for the trip came due . . . the Seniors were going to Disneyworld!

Homecoming and the prom found their place in the senior expense account. Lastly, graduation rolled around. Announcements were purchased as were other paraphernalia. The year was over and many seniors got the taste of what it must be like to go broke.

The Winners

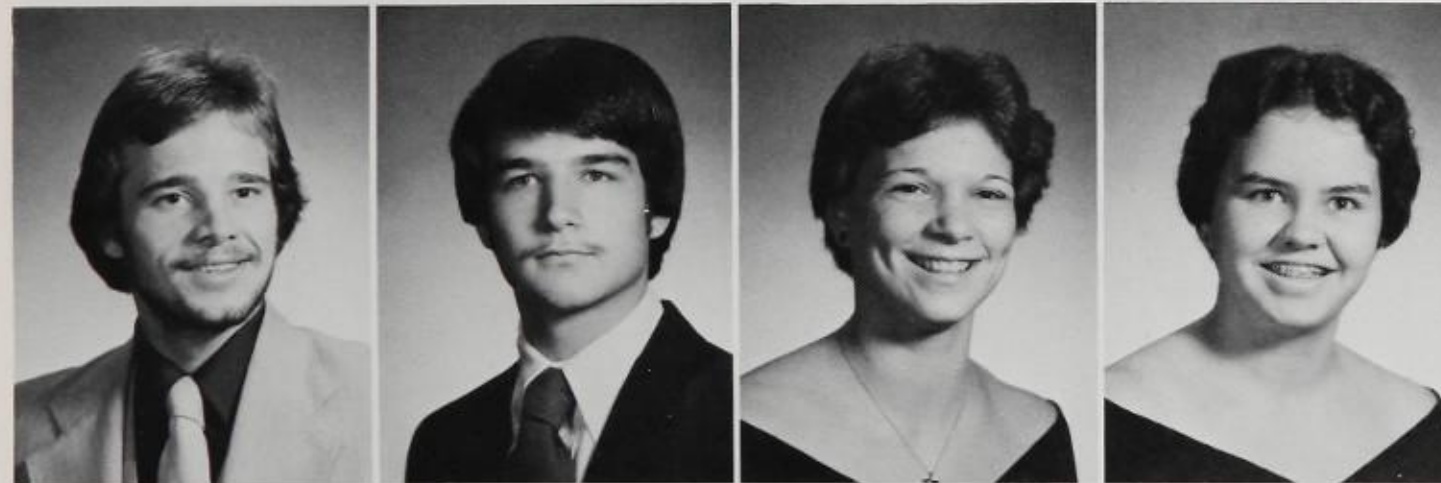

Many of the students from WHS that planned on continuing their education had the pleasure of taking the Preliminary Scholastic Achievement Test (PSAT). Seven students were commended for their exceptional scores: Bev Golliher, Jay LaVia, Bob McCleery, Beth O'Connor, Will Olberholtzer, Denise Tobin, Rick Winward, Dave DeCamp was a semi-finalist for the merit scholarship and Lori Doneghy and Eric Moore won the National Achievement Scholarship. Congratulations to all of these students.

Dave DeCamp, a PSAT semi-finalist.

Denise Tobin, Rick Winward, Beth O'Connor, Will Olberholtzer, Bob McCleery, Bev Golliher, and Jay LaVia.

The Real Pay-Off

Around WHS it was never unusual to see a student in a McDonald's uniform or sporting the latest Gino's cap exiting the school while the rest of us sat in English class wishing to exchange places with them.

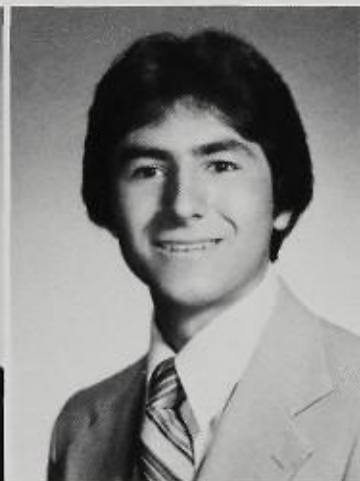

This "earn while you learn" system, made it possible for students to hold a job and continue in school with equal success. With the experience gained by working during school; students increased their chances of employment after graduation.

Every year the halls of the school are decorated for Homecoming, and a contest is held between the soph's, Jr.'s and Sr.'s. A similar contest is held for a Homecoming Float. All of the hard work put in by the Sr.'s float committee was rewarded by first prize at the Homecoming football game. Their float was a very impressive castle called "Seniors in Sherwood Forest".

Sherry Endicott uses a piece of machinery in an examining room.

There were those students involved in the vocational education nursing program who once every week, journeyed to Rancocas Valley Hospital, and used the hospital facilities aiding the girls in their own skills and techniques. This program was used throughout the year and had a bit of publicity (a large cover story in the Burlington County Times). This program was beneficial to both the students and the hospital. Through the efforts of the school system the students learned much about the nursing world.

Munch Out

"Oh, not hot dogs again!" was a common complaint heard in the school cafeteria when students discovered that yesterday's lunch was reheated for today. But students always had the a la carte line to run to. The food, offered ranged from fruit and yogurt (for the health nuts) to cookies, ice cream and potato chips helped us make it through the day until we could get home to munch out.

VES to WHI

The age of liberation has decended into Willingboro Township and it's schools, knocking the populace off its feet.

The continuing pressure of females demanding equal rights was nothing new to society, but women proving that they can acquire certain skills as well as, if not surpassing, their male counterparts may be considered a stunning feat in itself . . .

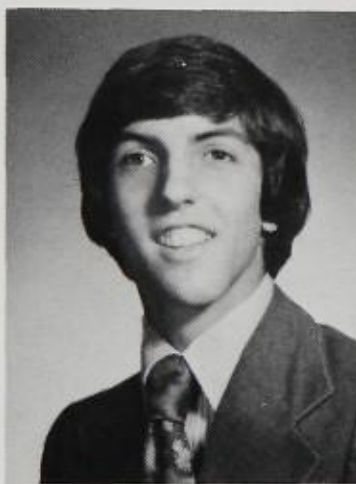

Whether they were a success or not was not for us to tell, but as for their daring exploits, we said more power to them!

Srs. show their spirit during one of the seasons pep rallies.

The hat of an athlete leads an exciting life.

Paula and Daras Wetzel wave "Hello" to Florida.

Some cool Srs. are going to the The Court of Flags Hotel Hukilau.

The alarm clock goes off. Amid the dark and gloom of the house a tired Senior stirs and reaches for the bell. He turns it off. Struggling out of bed and staggering towards the bathroom, he wonders, "Is this really worth it?" Later, in several hours or so, an answer crashes through time and space, reverberating inside his apathetic head . . . "You bet your sweet bippy it is!" What event could cause 150 Seniors to migrate into school two full hours before it opens? What event could cause fourteen tired, overworked teachers and administrators to sacrifice 96 hours of life? What disease could cause big, round black ears to emerge atop seventeen-year-old heads? The cataclysmic event that occurs once every year — SENIOR TRIP! Again, right on schedule, it happened once more.

The semi-conscious Seniors arrived bloodshot and yawning at the school on or about 6:00 in the morning. With limitless tenacity and conviction, the chaperones, in a blind stupor, searched the Seniors' luggage. Only the usual was found: several containers of Stridex, Clearasil, a tube of Preparation H, and two dozen disco scarves. These kids were set. Boarding their buses, these lucky Seniors and their ruthless chaperones made way for the airport and beyond. The sun peeked its winter gaze over the sleezy horizon as they received their boarding passes for the plane.

After checking through security and being stripped of their sawed off shotguns, the adventurers boarded the souped-up DC-8 and prepared for takeoff. As the powerful bird lifted its glorious wings over Philly International, cheers of praise and adulation filled the plane, all were exuberant, except for Mr. Feldman — he was air-sick.

At last the plane landed. The pilot's relieved voice came over the intercom. "Welcome to Orlando. It's partly sunny and 79 degrees." How ironic, the class of '79 thought to themselves, as they laughed and sang on the way to the hotel.

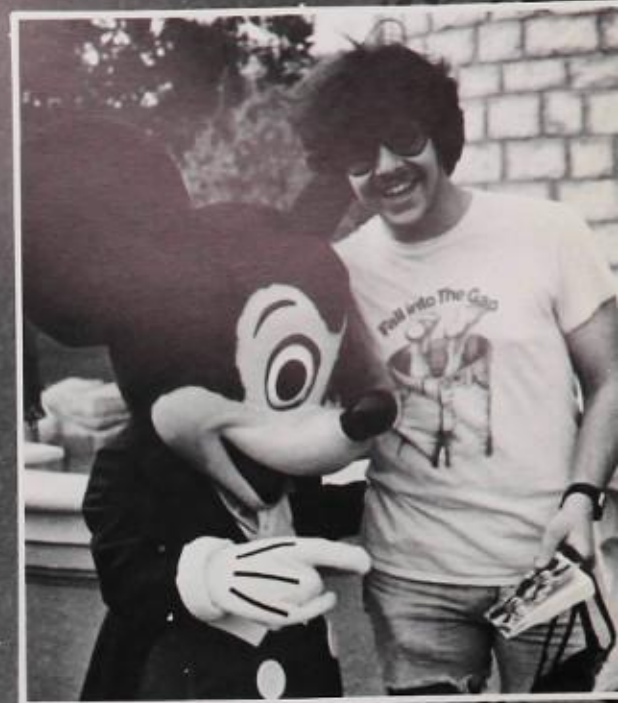

After a brief swim and the arrival of some tardy luggage, the group headed out for Sea World — land of fat tourists with sunglasses and big noses. All that sunny day, these escaped convicts from the dirty cells of New Jersey wandered about pointing at Dolphins, laughing at Sea Lions, and walking very carefully through the "you-pet-'em" Deer Park. Slowly the sun set and a warm breeze blew gently across some sunburnt faces. In the midst of a Polynesian pavilion, they partook of a luau. Never has the masculinity of a "hula" been demonstrated as well as when Mr. Mulder took the spotlight. Mrs. Morris wasn't so bad, either. The Blues Brothers made their debut and Mr. Trama showed his dancing talents. The hostess-for-the-trip said that in 200

Busting Loose

Sea World's famous seals enjoy the lovely Florida weather.

luaus, this had been the best yet. With chants of "Shamu, Shamu", the Seniors and their zombi chaperones went back to the hotel, and schemed for the next day's venture into Disneyworld. Was Mickey ready for them?

The thrill of Space Mountain and the timeless beauty of Walt Disney swept the Seniors off their blistered feet and carried them with Peter Pan into Never-Never Land. Unfortunately, the ride broke down. Cinderella's Castle glistened in the sunlight as the group's picture was taken. The magical day in the Kingdom was topped off with a jamming disco back at the hotel..

The next day, like an inexpensive whiskey, improved with age. The overzealous Seniors attacked The Pirates of the Caribbean. They took a spin on The Mad Tea Party, and went diving 20,000 Leagues Under the Sea. "What's a league?" they pondered. Mr. Gillis explained that it was 14 teams split into two opposing divisions, East and West. With wide eyes and gaping mouths the Seniors wondered aimlessly about the place oblivious to the most potential danger — sunburn. Later that day, Mickey, Pluto, Donald, and Goofy came out and had a couple sodas with the chaperones. "Iced tea," Donald said. Ms. Klein just smiled at him with a gleam. Soon night fell and Disneyworld lit up like a wonderful dream. Three lucky Seniors watched the sun set breathlessly into the west from atop the Contemporary Hotel. Unfortunately they were out of "B" tickets and had to stay up there for the rest of the trip. That night, fireworks exploded in the sky in a series of beautiful colors and hues. Tears rolled down Mr. McGrath's face as the fireworks shined brightly above the Magic Castle. Soon Mr. Gorski stepped off his foot and the tears subsided. Singing the Mickey Mouse Theme, the Seniors and their catatonic chaperones took a last look at Disneyworld. "M-I-C, see ya real soon, K-E-Y, why? Because we love ya, M-O-U-S-E." Sobbing and Sniffing, they went back to the hotel.

The final day dawned. The sun was shining as they went to Cypress Gardens, took off their shirts, rolled up their pants, ran barefoot on the well-manicured grass, and laid down on the lawn, soaking in the Florida sun. Later, they strolled through the beauty of Cypress Gardens, with its rare trees and plants, (not to mention the famed salami tree.)

Soon, however, dark ominous clouds, taking the shape of an old English Exam, rolled into the sky. They shook violently, sweeping darkly from left to right, until, with a bright flash of light and a deafening roar of thunder, opened up and emptied sheets of pelting rain and gallons of very wet water. One keen-eyed Senior looked up and said with all the knowledge and insight that is inherent to all of his kind, "It's raining." After swimming to the buses, the Seniors and their lethargic chaperones enjoyed a buffet smorgesborg and then made way for Orlando Jetport. Before boarding the DC-8 Special, the Seniors insisted on playing "Disco Airport". Finally, after hot pastrami sandwiches, cold soda, and turbulence, 150 nauseated Seniors and their expired chaperones were home in the bleak town of Philadelphia. Some Seniors, so used to rides and attractions, assumed the liberty of taking a spin on the baggage carousel. At last, complete with oranges and overpriced Mickey Mouse statues that got cracked when the baggage man threw them onto the track, the Adventurers arrived at Willingboro High School just in time to hear the news; Gas was up to 90 cents, there was a recession, they were all drafted into the army to fight with the Chinese against the Soviets, and there was a Trig test tomorrow. Mickey Mouse, where are you now?

JUNIOR CLASS

LEARNING THE ROPES

The astronaut goes through excruciating and laborious preparation for launch. He is trained to operate the many-faceted ship on which he will travel a fantastic journey. He is taught how to deal with every alternative, every situation, and every problem, and still he is not sure if all his training will suffice.

The underclassmen were the astronauts. They worked and worked toward that final, ultimate launch: graduation. Their final year of preparation consisted of merely brush-ups, touch-ups and last minute details, but the meat of teaching, the most important work, had taken all of 10 long years.

Some are entering into the final chapter of their education, others have just begun. The work is not finished, yet. But all can look back and say that a good job has been done this year. A good job has surely been done.

Showing their support to their class are Ricky Elliot, Colleen Schroeder, Christine Kreischer, Jennifer Larson, Don Halpern, Joe France, Steve Erdman, Sue Goes.

CLASS OF 1981

As Troy Vopper demonstrates, you are never too old to appreciate a lollipop.

One step was all it took to go from the days of girl chasing and the ninth grade "Social," to Homecoming and increased extracurricular activities. The word sophomore had often been used as an insult, but the class of '81 changed that. For the first time in four years the Sophomore Class was recognized for its accomplishments.

The Sophomore Class, as with all beginning classes, had many challenges to face. The strong leadership and level-headed guidance of the class officers and advisor were a necessity.

President David Morris, Vice-President Patricia Vienneau, Secretary Debra Morris, and Treasurer Ellen McGrath worked together to provide the leadership, and with the guidance of Ms. Klein, they have met some of the challenges that faced the class of '81.

CLASSROOM DIVERSIONS

For 180 days we worked, with each day becoming longer than the last. We certainly deserved a break. Students were given the opportunity to get out of study halls and gym by taking simulation. This was an enjoyable way to improve our driving perception. We found many other ways to make the days go faster. Do you remember all your teacher's favorite jokes? Everyone knew about forged passes and the cutting of classes. How many times were you in class but your mind was somewhere else or maybe not there at all. Through all these things days became shorter without our knowledge.

In simulation, driving a car is found to be a lot safer than reality for John Moore.

Being the seventeenth in a sixteen desk classroom, Caron Kelly finds sitting on the floor the next best thing.

Through all the ups and downs of the Sophomores' and Juniors' year, one thing remained constant; togetherness. The tie that bound the two classes was extremely strong. The Sophomores rose from junior high, and came smiling to their new educational home. The Juniors, a year advanced, older and wiser, saw them and remembered when they, too, were possessed with the same confidence and energy. It was this inescapable bond that caused the Juniors to help the newer class in what otherwise could have been a very rocky and turbulent first year. They were seen at the dances, they were seen in the hallways, they were seen at the games, in various garments, in various moods and with various friends, but always, they were seen together.

The Juniors looked to the Sophomores saying, "You are what we were". The Sophomores looked to the Juniors saying, "You are what we can be". And together "Up" is the only direction in which they can go.

Elaine McKeon, Michelle Rogers, Cathy Griggs and Carla McCarthy, vigorously cheer on their team.

FREE TIME INDULGENCES

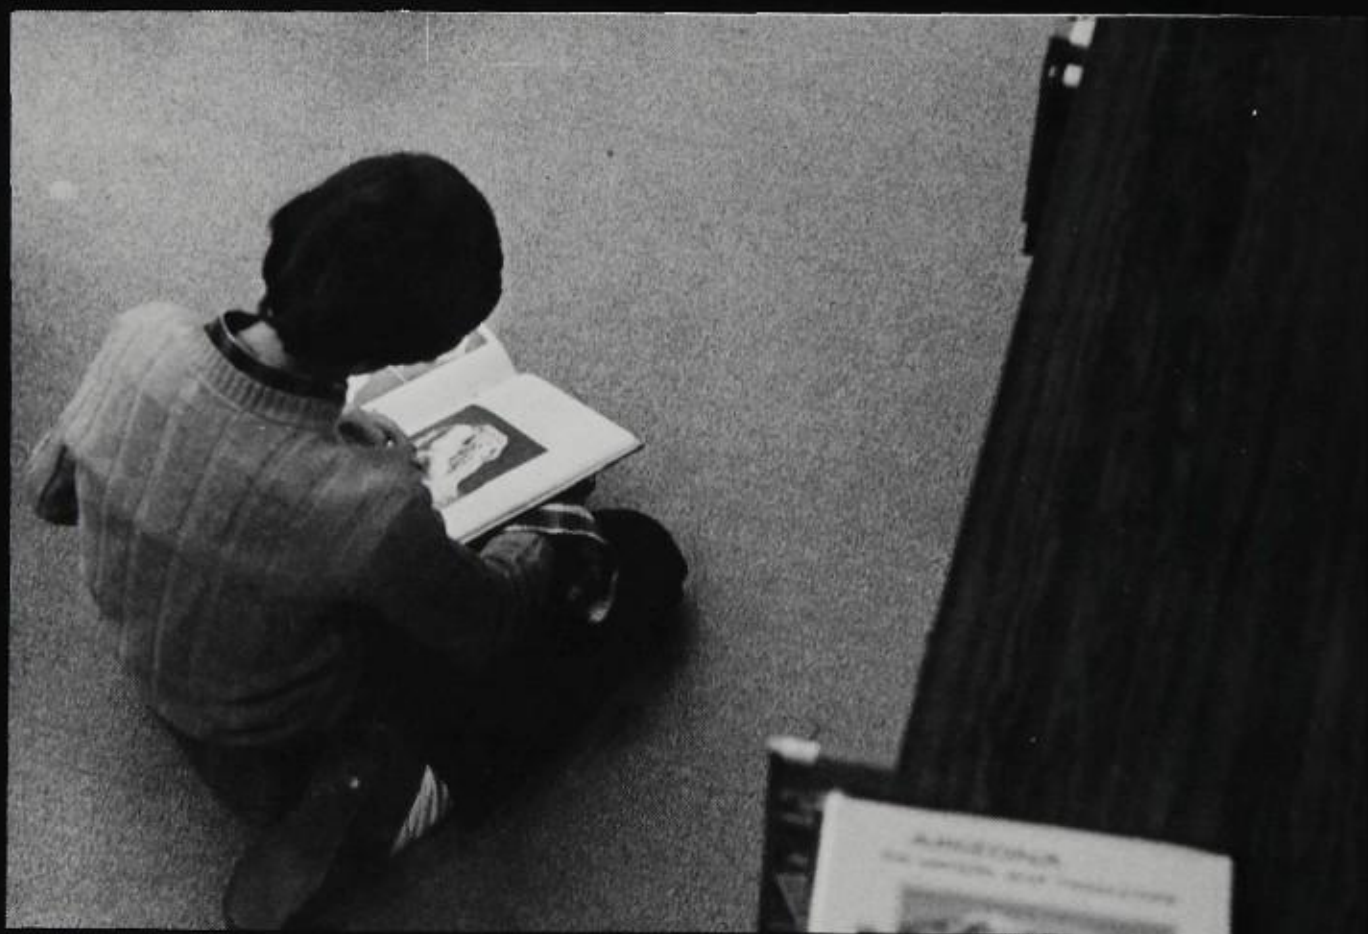

The yearbook staff wanted to know the underclassmen's views on a traditional high school activity — dating. A mini-poll was taken to gauge their response to the latest ideas sweeping the rest of the country: girls asking guys out on dates. The sophomores and the juniors were asked if they felt this was aggressive on the girls' part. The answer was an overwhelming and resounding "No!"

A closer look at the results, however, revealed an oddity. It appeared that among the people who answered yes, more girls than guys thought that the sheer audacity of a girl asking out a guy was not to be tolerated. Of course, there were the struggling few who took the easy way out by answering, "indifferent," but the only time they rang up any noticeable total was among female juniors.

As a footnote, a question was asked as to how much school spirit the students thought W.H.S. had. At first glance, the answer was depressing, as more than half the underclassmen said that they thought W.H.S. could be better in spirit. But at second glance, if all those were concerned about it, plus the people who said, "yes, W.H.S. had spirit" then Willingboro High really doesn't have anything to worry about, does it? Because these people will try to better spirit.

MOVIN' ON UP

Sophomores will be sophomores as Juniors will be juniors, but there comes a time when sophomores will be juniors and juniors are glad to be seniors.

Each day we worked toward the end of this year and towards the beginning of a new one. We gained maturity and wisdom, as each day passed, sometimes without our knowledge, as we grew older and wiser.

As young people of this world and the students of this school, we are MOVIN' ON UP!

Debbie Sullivan works hard to prepare for her future advancement.

"I shall grow old, but never lose life's zest, Because the road's last turn will be the best."

— Henry Van Dyke

You couldn't keep the class of '80 down. As the treasury rose, so did their spirits. Their unflagging enthusiasm kept them in the air for the entire school year. After their first year, when they scored an enormous victory by being one of the few sophomore classes to win the Homecoming float competition, they coasted through their second, winning the Homecoming hallway decoration competition.

Despite these successes, fundraising was uppermost in everyone's mind. Immediately after they had collected the last dollar from their candy sale, they launched a fruit sale, hoping to make their Junior Prom, and Senior trip and Prom, more successful. President Levine even attended the NJEA convention. On one hand, he attended in order to find more ideas for making money. On the other, he kept the future in mind and picked up ideas for trips.

In their middle year at Willingboro High, the Class of '80 had a marvelous time. Some might say it was because they had few worries, being on the stepping stone between embarkation and graduation, but the Class of '80 knew better. They've gone two-thirds of the way of their journey, and they wouldn't slow down, for, next years seniors know, just as well as Henry Van Dyke, that the best is yet to come.

THE THRILL OF VICTORY, THE AGONY OF DEFEAT

Congratulations and condolences went to the Class of '80. Congratulations, first for their brilliant Peter Pan hallway display, complete with drawings, paintings, and even a few stars to wish on. Alas, thou, the stars were not with them at the Homecoming game, when they did not add the float competition laurels to their already flowery crown, (they won the float competition in '77). Overjoyed and discouraged, the Junior Class will not give up. They look forward to a winning Senior year.

HEADS OF THE CLASS

Our class officers, President — Ari Levine, Vice President — Sue Evans, Secretary — Debby Gepner, and Treasurer — Christanna Murray organized and led us, as juniors through a fantastic year. Without them this year would never have been the same. Along with the guidance and assistance of Ms. Soderstrom and many others this year had become our best yet.

Chairpersons Debbie DeBlasio and Ellen Kimmel, with the help of Secretary Debbie Gepner and Advisor Ms. Soderstrom, work hard during one of the many Junior Class meetings.

REMEMBER . . .

September — Getting back into the swing of things is never easy. As Juniors, we were given more books, more homework, and more tests than ever before. But we still had another great year to look forward to.

October — Hard work and the anticipation of Homecoming filled our second month of school. (See pages 186 and 187 for the results.)

November — "Puff your Stars and Star your Puffs" was the motto for our great Junior Class candy sale.

December — We held our first dance of the year, "The Last Dance of '78". We held the second annual "Last Dance of the Year", which we started as Sophomores.

January — We sold both hoagies and carnations to start the new year. This strange but successful combination supplemented our class funds.

February — Couples old and new gathered for our Valentine's Dance. The dance and the holiday it celebrated were special for everyone there.

March — Sweetness was added to this usually sour month by another class candy sale. Those profits, along with the ones from our dances helped our prom plans become reality.

April — We took a break from sales and dances in order to prepare for our Junior Prom.

May — May flowers (corsages and boutonnieres) adorned our gowns and tuxedos for our Prom at Ange-loni's. It was a night that began with expectations and ended with remembrances.

June — With every end there is a new beginning. June signified the end of our days as underclassmen. It was also the beginning of our senior and most important year.

UP THE ANTE

Wall Street we were not, but we surely had money matters under control. Inflation was spiraling and the U.S. dollar was shrinking, but we kept a steady course.

Businesses, parents, and friends aided in the making of this book and our debt of appreciation to them is insurmountable.

The Advertising and Sales Staff worked for hours to make the 1979 Chimera Yearbook priceless to all of us. Money may make the world go round but the next few pages kept us from upping the ante.

Let it bear all vivid colors of a rainbow,
Full of abundance of the earth below
And even then, no matter how often we said it,
We could never over do the tiny sound of
WE LOVE YOU!!

CHIMERA CHRONICLE

WILLINGBORO HIGH SCHOOL

You can go a long way in a few short years.

Would you like to see more of the world than your own home town? Meet new people? Make new friends? Do some traveling? You can in the Army.

If you qualify, we'll train you in the skill of your choice and send you to Europe.

And while you're there, if you'd like to continue your education, or learn a foreign language during your off-duty time, we'll pay up to 75% of the tuition for approved courses.

To see if you qualify, call today. We can reserve a spot in some training classes up to a year in advance.

AUTOGRAPHS

On these two pages there has been space left for all of your favorite people to sign, recording special memories and good wishes for eternity.

This jammin' group in the auditorium proves one of W.H.S.'s favorite mottos, "The more, the merrier."

FULL-TIME FRIENDS

When you go up to someone and say, "Where did you meet that guy, Jack Fieldcourt (or anybody else)", chances are very good they'll say in school. And that makes sense. You're liable to meet people in school that you will be friends with for a long time. You may even marry someone you met here. The friends you made here were always there when you needed them. They lent you their notes, they gave you rides to school or home, they lent you a pair of shorts in gym, they stuck up for you in a pinch, and they listened to your problems. They explained the math homework to you, they helped you with your fruit flies, they laughed at your jokes when they were funny and told you if they were awful. For these reasons, and countless others, you'll remember your friends the most after school gets out. Twenty years from now, if someone comes up to you at your reunion and asks you if you remember the Mean Value Theorem, all you'll do is sit there and stare at them. But if they ask you if you remember J.M. LaVienstatter, visions of M&M fights and arm-wrestling matches will start to fill your head. So remember the best times of your life and the people you shared them with.

Jackie McNeil and Leslie Jones take advantage of a chance to finish off some homework together.

Taking a break from his work, Nick Hall talks with some friends in the library.

Gloria Bonilla works on her advertising poster.

Guitarists Reno Rolle and Mark Vesper enjoy the solitude during a practice session.

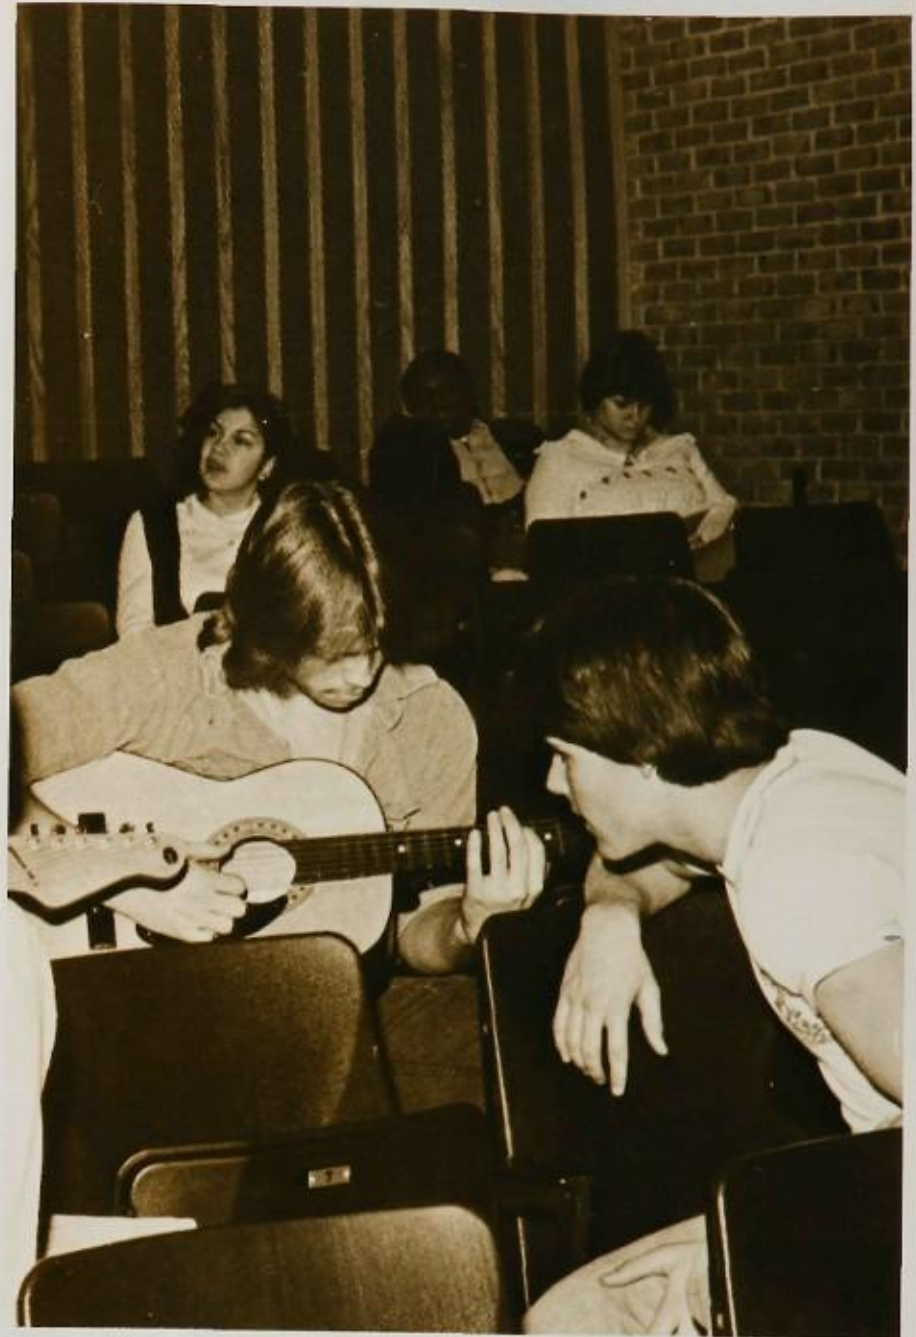

Teaming up for a doubles match are Diane Swanson and Joan Perry.

LIVE IT UP, LAUGH IT UP

Jody Skwara and Mike Kautzman take time out to enjoy a musical interlude in study hall.

Despite the frigid weather, Chimera fans come out in droves.

Let's face it. School is boring. All by itself, six hours a day, a hundred and eighty days a year, school can get boring. So some people who ran schools in the good old days tried to think of some ways to ease the boredom. And they invented social events. But they needed some way to liven up the situation in the schools themselves. So they invented things like freak day, slave day and study halls. A few years ago they started a new thing called "The Gong Show". This year, the students got in on the act, too. Such things as "The Evil Baddies" and "Brummy's Tabernacle Choir" took Willingboro by storm. But regardless of the originator of the idea, the students here sure did live it up and laugh it up.

There's always a few who get their kicks in strange ways.

The Homecoming disc jockees pick the right sounds to dance to.

Occasionally a day comes along that cannot be saved from boredom by anything.

The kids gather round for some fun and games at the Interact Club Costume Party.

Frank Alcaro is more than eager to pose for a passing photographer.

This year, following the tradition of years before, school spirit shined through. At football games, basketball games, pep rallies and even in the halls, teams got together and psyched themselves up for the big game. The cheerleaders cheered, the marching band marched on, the support units put on a display, and they all lead our teams on to victory. At every event, fans flocked the stadium and filled the stands with cheers. When it came to school spirit, we certainly were full of it, this year as much as ever.

The girl's hockey and tennis teams show how to enjoy a pep rally.

Torn between an assignment and his need for sleep, Todd Cohen tries vainly to complete his work.

Curtis Gaither works on his physics project in an awkward position.

HIGH ON SPIRIT

Lisa Sigall looks up information in the library.

Dina Sholes shows that doing a halftime show involves much concentration.

Students still enjoy pictures of Alice in Wonderland.

IT'S ALL UP TO YOU

"It's all up to you", they say. "The future is in your hands." And they're right. We're the young generation, and we will shape what the future will be. The seniors are starting that trek now, but the sophomores and juniors are not far behind. For now, it's up to them to uphold the traditions at Willingboro. The academic and sports records set by the Class of '79 and others before them leave a tough act to follow. But we feel the underclassmen are up to it. The seniors, similarly, will try to uphold some traditions, but on a much larger scale. Whether it be college, a job, or a military career, they will all make Willingboro proud of its alumni.
